Vol. 3—No. 69 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City Comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Destiny of City Government Depends on Candidates

MIDNIGHT today is the limit of time for the filing of petitions for the coming city elections.

Up to noon the following five citizens of Glendale had signified their desire to become candidates for the office of city councilman:

Allen O. Martin, 640 West Lexington.

Don Webb, 604 North Kenwood.

Sydney Gilhuly, 342 East Lomita.

Frank Booth, 111 South Kenwood.

Allen O. Martin, formerly chief of police for Glendale, came here with a record of 24 years' service in that line of work in Chicago and other cities of the east. He is now in the real estate business.

Don Webb is well known in Glendale. He is a member of the firm of the Glendale Hardware Co.

Frank Booth, for many years a leading groceryman, is now in the real estate business.

Alexander H. Lapham is at present a councilman of Glendale. His business interests are in Los Angeles.

There is no opposition to the re-election of Presly O. Lucas and Nettie C. Brown to membership on the board of education.

Albert D. Pearce is the only candidate for member of the union high school board of trustees to fill the vacancy caused by the term of Dan Campbell having expired.

RUMOR is going the rounds that at least two more candidates will enter the race for city councilman, but they have not yet filed their petitions.

Too little interest has been manifested by Glendale citizens in this election. It is one of the most important in the history of our city.

Without much doubt, several complex questions will have to be answered during the term of these men. The sewer problem will have to be solved soon and the future of our city is based on how this is solved.

ONE of the strongest arguments brought up in favor of annexation has been our lack of proper sewer facilities, and if this is answered correctly, most of those now in favor of annexation will withdraw their support to the movement.

Transportation is another problem that will be answered soon. In fact, there is so much agitation right now that the matter will without doubt be one of the first things of importance to be considered by the new board.

PIGSKINS OUT FOR PRACTICE

[By Associated Press]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., March 21.—After a rest of three months, the Stanford gridiron men will be on the job again April 3 for practice, with Coaches "Pop" Warner, Andy Kerr and "Tiny" Thornhill working to develop the Cardinal backfield.

The Cards' line has been weakened by the loss of Capt. Dudley de Groot and Charles Johnston at center and tackle. Likewise, large holes have been shot in the team by the loss of Joe Douglass, Bill Pheney and George Houck, who were stricken off the list by the registrar's axe. Cravens and Faville, rated as the team's best guards, will return this spring, and Mertz, Dole, Lawson, Janssen and Thomas will be back for their places at the ends. George Baker, who substituted for De Groot in a few quarters last season, will have but one contender for the center division, Bob Hunt of the freshman squad.

RELEASED BY POLICE

Al Heilliby, 249 Minna street, San Francisco, and Norman Pollock, 3275 Twenty-fifth street, San Francisco, who were arrested Monday night on suspicion, were released yesterday by Chief Fraser, as no evidence was found on which they could be held.

COLOMBUS AVENUE JUNIOR MAKES RECORD BROAD JUMP IN INTERSCHOOL MEET

David Chasse Beats All Divisions With a Distance of Fourteen Feet, Establishing New Mark for All the City Schools

PAULINE MARSH IS THE DORAN STREET STAR

Curtis McFadden of Broadway, Betty Lawton of Columbus, Make Brilliant Showing, While All Interest Is Centered on Relay Races for This Afternoon

The inter-school track meet of city schools which is on this week at the Glendale avenue intermediate was almost as exciting as the returns from a national election, Tuesday afternoon, so close was the contest between Broadway and Columbus, with first one ahead and then the other.

David Chasse of Columbus avenue school was the individual star of the day. In junior broad jump he cleared 14 feet, which was better than any record made by either intermediate or senior contestants.

Curtis McFadden of Broadway also starred, taking his second first place. These two are the only boys so far that have won more than one first place in the meet.

Pauline Marsh of Doran proved to be the individual star of the girls, having taken two first places and one second.

Betty Lawton of Columbus, another girl star, won two first places.

Interest is centering around the relay races to be run this afternoon because they will probably settle the meet. This afternoon's events will complete the grammar school division, the rest of the week being left for the two intermediate schools.

On Thursday all the boys and girls who have won first, second, third and fourth places, will receive their ribbons at the hands of Supervisor Blanford and Miss Polk.

Following are the details of Tuesday's events and individual scores of the winners:

Dr. Royce has laid out and constructed 24 roque courts. He has been a resident here ten years.

Upon the completion of the four courts the games of the Southern California Roque league may be played here. In this league there are four teams—Long Beach, Pasadena, Exposition park and Glendale.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ORGAN ARRIVES

Installation of Instrument to Begin Toward the Week-end

The splendid organ ordered months ago from the Hinner Organ company of Pekin, Ill, for the new Congregational church, arrived Tuesday and is being delivered at the church today. Not until the last of the week will the men be here to install it and it is feared it will not be ready for the Easter services, which will be a disappointment.

It is a 2-manual instrument with electric-pneumatic action and contains the latest modern appliances, having 16 full independent sets of pipes or 1100 in all.

The case was designed by Mr. Winslow, architect of the church, and is already in place.

BOSTON CULT BUYS SITE IN LA CRESCENTA

Ve Danta Center Secures Fusenot Tract Near High-up Ranch

SPIRITUAL IDEALS

Organized Fifteen Years Ago, It Is Lured by Fame of District

LA CRESCENTA, March 21.—One of the most important realty transfers made in the La Crescenta valley for sometime was consummated this week when Ve Danta Centre of Boston, Mass., purchased the George Fusenot estate. The Ve Danta Centre is a cult that has been in existence in Boston for fifteen years, but the attractions of California's great climatic advantages, as well as its free spiritual outlook caused the head of the movement to be transferred to this part of the country. Basically and spiritually the movement is entirely non-sectarian. It will be an artistic, as well as spiritual center. All the expressions of nature gift in the highest degree possible the cult considers the true form of worship. Everything that is useful and beautiful will be welcomed.

Mr. Fusenot's holdings comprise 135 acres, improved with a most attractive home and caretaker's house, and joins the High-up ranch of H. S. Bissell. Mr. Fusenot's grounds are most artistic, as he developed the natural beauty of the mountains and wild flowers, shrubs and trees. Mr. and Mrs. Fusenot are at present residing in Paris. The transfer of the property was made through the Fred H. Anderson office of Montrose.

Another meeting has been called for a week from Monday night to make further plans for such an auxiliary, and it is hoped that representatives from the various organizations and others interested in the work will attend.

HUSBANDS' NIGHT HELD BY SECTION

Literary Section of Tuesday Club Entertains at Clubhouse

NEWCOMB SPEAKS

Romance of California Is Theme of Delightful Evening

The romance of the past of California, its legends and history, the practical present and the possibilities of the future, were some of the features of the talk given by Rev. A. F. Newcomb at the "husbands' night" meeting of the Literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, held last night at the new club house, with 70 members and escorts present.

Rev. Newcomb told of the romance of the history of California, taking the listeners back to the days before the Indians, describing the interesting geological finds being made. The romance of the missions and their establishment throughout the whole length of California from the time of the landing of Fra Junipero Serra at San Diego to the founding of the mission "Our Lady the Queen of the Angels," which is now known as the plaza church of Los Angeles, these were some of the interesting things told by Rev. Newcomb.

He spoke of the wonderful climate, and how the railroads and harbor facilities of this metropolitan area had been responsible for its rapid and increasing growth. He said "with the climate, industry and commerce here this metropolitan area is bound to go ahead and will become the greatest business center of the world."

In concluding his talk Rev. Newcomb, who is lecturer for the Pacific Palisades, told of this large and influential Christian center which has been established at the Santa Monica bay district, although in the city limits of Los Angeles, and comprises over 2000 acres.

A group of very delightful vocal numbers were given by Miss Elizabeth Mottern, accompanied at the piano by Miss Bernice Hall. "The Glory Song of California," the music and words for which were written by Genevieve Whittemore of Glendale, "I Love You California," and "Oh, Thou Billowy Harvest Fields" (Rachmaninoff), were the numbers given.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, club president, was introduced by Mrs. J. E. Sargent, curator of the section, and extended greetings to the husbands. Announcement was made by Mrs. Sargent of the rehearsal tonight in the high school for the Easter sunrise chorus, asking the men particularly to attend.

Mrs. Frank Ayars, Mrs. E. S. McKee and Mrs. W. H. Verity as a courtesy committee received the guests. After the meeting delicious refreshments were served by a committee, including Mrs. H. C. Wilcox, Mrs. J. W. Walton, Mrs. G. H. Rowe, Mrs. V Rapp, Mrs. Balthis, Mrs. E. S. McKee and Mrs. A. R. Eastman

PROGRESS OF NEW SANITARIUM IS SATISFACTORY

Councilman C. E. Kimlin, manager of the Glendale Sanitarium, says that while work on the new sanitarium plant is progressing very satisfactorily, it would be much further along were it not for delays in receiving steel, ordered weeks ago and not yet delivered. He says that prices seem to be mounting instead of declining.

He said that the ground floor is in and what is known as the first floor will soon be laid. The dining room, kitchen and parlor sections will soon be ready for the roof.

Chief Fraser is anxious to learn Tom's address. He has a little something to say to him.

C. OF C. ENDORSES AIRPORT PURCHASE BY THE CITY

Favors Bond Campaign With R. F. Kitterman Casting Negative Vote

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce endorsed the purchase of the 33-acre airport at its meeting Tuesday and also voted in favor of the proposed campaign that has been started for the voting of bonds for the purchase of this site.

The matter was presented by City Manager Reeves.

George Karr, chairman of the civics committee, spoke of the efforts that are being made to make the proposed Hyperion boulevard connecting Santa Monica and Glendale a reality. He said he thought the chamber should be back of this move wholeheartedly, and should leave nothing undone that would aid in any way in this road being built. It is understood that the northern terminus of this road is at this city. A permanent committee of three, to be selected by the chair, to take up this work and carry it through, was authorized. This committee will attend the meeting of the Biltmore association in Los Angeles, Thursday night.

A letter from the Long Beach chamber of commerce, relative to the reappointment of the supervisorial districts of Southern California, was tabled.

An invitation was received from the company putting on the Glenoaks tract, asking the members of the board to attend a barbecue dinner which will be held on that tract Wednesday noon.

Mr. McCormick reported that $4,900 in contracts for the Merchants' exposition are in hand, and that by the end of the week it is expected that this amount will have been swelled to $6000, the chamber's share of which will cover the expense of that organization in connection with the show.

WOMEN SNARED BY LOTTERIES

[By Associated Press]

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 21.—Fifteen lotteries running in the heart of Chinatown here are attracting many well dressed women, who strive to travel an easy road to wealth by trying for the daily prizes totaling $60,000, according to a statement of an investigator who has just surveyed the gambling districts here.

Filipinos, Japanese and Chinese indulge in fan-tan and blackjack games, he stated, but the women gamblers, seeking the romance of the Orient, play the lotteries exclusively. More than $150,000 a day is being paid into the lotteries here, it is declared.

Two drawings a day are held in the lottery headquarters, it is said, and the results are telegraphed to practically every city west of the Mississippi river.

HIGH JINKS DAY TO BE MOVIE STUNT

"Jinks Day" at Glendale high is to be filmed for posterity. Principal Moyse has arranged for a camera man from the Fox studios to be sent out Friday afternoon to make films of the students in costume, and the parade will therefore be limited to the campus. The thought back of the project is to accumulate a library of jinks films in which in due time serious minded seniors will be able to see themselves in their foolish freshmen days and realize how time does fugit.

The camera man has asked to see them in action and his wishes will no doubt be gratified to the full.

ONE HUNDRED ATTEND CALLED MEETING

C. D. Thom Becomes Permanent Chairman, After Organization by Judge Lowe; Committeemen Selected and Meeting Set

A campaign organization, the purpose of which is to "put over" the issue of $49,500 bonds for the purchase of the 33-acre airport on the west side of the city, at the election on April 10, was formed at a meeting held at the city hall, Tuesday night.

Campaign and publicity and finance committees were selected and it was decided to hold a joint meeting of these committees at the Harriet Mae Tea Room at noon, Saturday. The organization was given the official name of Airport Campaign Committee.

About 100 prominent citizens gathered to start the campaign on its way. Notwithstanding the fact that Judge Lowe, temporary chairman, and C. D. Thom, who was elected permanent chairman, explained the object of the meeting to be simply the organization of a campaign for the bonds. Several of those opposed to the buying of the airport gathered and proceeded to state this opposition. This phase of the session was brought to an abrupt close in a "tilt" in which several of those present took part.

The two committees appointed consisted of the following:

Finance—Dr. T. C. Young, chairman; V. M. Hollister, A. L. Baird, H. M. Butts and L. H. Wilson.

Campaign and Publicity—Peter Ferry, chairman; W. S. Rattray, Arthur Campbell, Robert Jensen, Herman Nelson, Charles Guthrie, Arthur Dibbern, Fred Deal, P. M. Russell and C. B. Murphy.

Herman Nelson was elected treasurer of the organization and Col. Everington was selected as secretary.

Following the open session the committees held their initial meeting and decided upon the joint meeting for Saturday.

Following are the names of Glendale contestants who will deliver orations on the patriotic themes published some time ago, the contest taking place at Glendale high the evening of April 6. Mr. Moyse has been asked by Randolph Leigh, chairman of the committee, to select the judges for the event:

APPLEBY METHOD DISCUSSED BY CAR DEALERS

Glendale Distributors Gather at Glen Inn for Dinner

The Appleby method of handling the used car was the principal topic of discussion at the meeting Tuesday night of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association, which was held at Glen Inn. No action with regard to adopting this system was taken.

Following the 6:30 banquet, George T. Smith, president of the organization, introduced C. H. Hunter, who served as chairman of the meeting.

Messrs. Appleby, Goodrum and Hays of Santa Ana, where the Appleby system has been tried out, were visitors at the meeting. Mr. McCracken of the Willys-Overland Co. of Los Angeles was present and addressed the body. A number of the bankers of Glendale were guests of the association at this dinner.

It was decided that the organization will meet Tuesday evening to take up this system further and if possible to reach a decision as to whehter it shall or shall not be adopted.

SERVED 25 YEARS FOR MURDER; HE IS EXONERATED

Half Breed Cherokee Is Freed on Death Bed Confession of Woman

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, March 21.—How a half-breed Cherokee Indian, Charner Tidwell, languished from his youth for a quarter of a century in federal prison before being released on a baseless murder charge, was revealed in a tragic story told today by the department of justice. Freed from the charge by a death-bed confession after his years of suffering, the former prisoner is now enjoying the wealth of inherited Oklahoma oil lands.

Three presidents, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, denied pardons to Tidwell upon reports from former Attorney Generals Knox, Wickersham and Gregory, that all evidence in the murder case pointed positively, although circumstantially to his guilt. Friends of the prisoner, including Senator Owen, Former Senator Gore and Former Representative Alice Robertson, pressed the investigation of Tidwell's continued protests of innocence. Finally he was released from Atlanta prison upon a commutation of sentence recommended by Attorney General Daugherty and Assistant Attorney General Crimm.

After President Harding's commutation a woman's deathbed confession in Oklahoma revealed that Tidwell had been convicted of murdering her husband upon perjured testimony.

TONKAWA, Okla., March 21.—Peace reigned in the Prairie View churchyard oil war again today following the stir created yesterday by the circulation of false reports that two men had been killed in a fight at the church yard.

An armed truce is being maintained at the church property pending a court decision on the right of Charles E. Knox, Enid oil operator, to drill a well on a portion of the Prairie View churchyard, leased by him.

Telephone Bunco Game Investigation

LONG BEACH, March 21.—Cooperating with Detective Sergeant Markle, New York police are investigating the bogus telephone call by which an attempt was made to extort $500 in cash from Mrs. W. J. Lamberti.

Local police expressed the opinion this morning that certain Long Beach people are in some manner connected with the bunco game.

A long distance telephone call was received by Mrs. Lamberti, supposedly from her husband, a buyer for a large department store of this city, who is now in New York. The speaker, in a muffled tone, asked that $500 be telegraphed immediately to him at St. Luke's hospital. The telephone message was followed by a wire asking the same amount.

Mrs. Lamberti became bewildered. She sought the advice of friends. They were suspicious and notified New York officers. Investigation brought forth the information that Lamberti was well and in the Pennsylvania hotel.

That someone in Long Beach, acquainted with the movements of the department store buyer, had informed confederates in the east and that the demands resulted from a plan formulated by the two parties, is the belief expressed by local police officers.

Record Eank Clearings At Santa Monica

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 21.—Bank clearings for today were $403,115.99, the largest single day's figures in the history of the bay district clearing house association. No Monday on the peak of last summer's season, when more than 200,000 people flocked to the beaches, approached this sum within $50,00. With the official season this year still weeks away, banking officials declare yesterday's total presages a phenomenal influx of visitors this summer and a consequent huge volume of business with even larger daily clearings.

Santa Monica May Be Summer Capital

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 21.—That Santa Monica may become the summer home of the president of the United States and the nation's west coast capital thereby, is the effect of an inquiry by the California club as to a suitable location for a California White House.

The greater Santa Monica club, to which this communication is addressed, will promptly recommend a site on the Palisades here, overlooking the Pacific, a more admirable situation than which does not exist for an executive holiday manse, in the opinion of this civic organization.

Companies Fight for Oil Stations

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 21.—Competition for strategic corners suitable for oil stations among the large oil companies is keen here.

No sooner is a location obtained by one interest than the opposite corner is leased by another, and in many instances a third site on the same intersection is secured. A specific instance is the building of three stations on the corner of Rose and Washington avenues where three large companies are represented now. Similar conditions obtain at many other prominent corners.

Venice Highway Protest of No Avail

VENICE, March 21.—Although a legal technicality may delay the work for several months, Venice's link in the state highway system was practically assured today when City Engineer Griffin announced that the protests against the work represented less than 40 per cent of the property in the district affected.

The proposed improvement will cost approximately $500,000, and will build a highway through the amusement zone of Venice. At present there is no wide street running parallel to the town within five blocks of the Venice beach.

Sheller Wins From Brown

[By Associated Press]

SANTA ANA, March 21.—Young Sheller of San Bernardino gave "Onlie" Brown of Orange, one of the worst beatings that a man ever took last night in the ring at Promoter Billy Darnley's Anaheim Athletic club. The fight went four rounds and every round was Sheller's. This was the semi-windup on the card, but drew more cheers than the main event. Sheller put up a clean, fast fight.

Young Leo of Long Beach lost the main event via the "K. O." route in the first round to Victor Alexander, negro. Alexander substituted for Jack Williams and put on a real fight.

"Battling" Doty won his return match with Jimmy Douglas. This was a special event and started out like a real fight. Douglas laid down after the second round.

Kid Louie and Paul Wilkins boxed four rounds to a draw. Eddie Benson won a decision in his match with Pete Brown. Brown was knocked down twice in the first round and twice in the fourth. Pete West and Ruberts fought four rounds to a draw in the curtain-raiser.

96,000,000 Easterners Are Very Ignorant

PASADENA, March 21.—There are 96,000,000 persons in the east who know nothing about California, says R. C. Wilson, president of the Periodical Publishers' association of America. He says the people of this city are so busy "selling" California to themselves that they overlook the vast opportunity that awaits them in the east.

"Take off the green goggles and wink at the east with the naked eye," said he. "This is the land of boundless opportunity and you should impress it on all the people." He is at the Hotel Maryland.

CHICAGO BANKS CLOSE

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, March 21.—Four years ago Samuel W. Maltz discarded a blue uniform of a passenger train brakeman and became president of the 16th Street State Bank. About 20 years ago Fred W. Popp, recently found dead with a bullet hole in his head, dispensed with the gray suit of a mail carrier when he started on a financial career that carried him to the presidency of the Logan Square Trust & Savings Bank.

Today both of these institutions were closed. The Logan Square Trust & Savings Bank depositors and stockholders were engaged in re-organizing the institution and making good losses reported at $400,000, and the 16th Street State Bank accounts were being subjected to the scrutiny of state bank examiners. The 16th Street Bank was closed with admitted shortage of $150,000 yesterday.

Maltz organized the bank about four years ago with a group of railroad brakemen and conductors. William F. McLaughlin, assistant states attorney, said Maltz had confessed making bad loans totaling between $30,000 and $40,000.

Loans on questionable second mortgages, officials said, brought about the bank's closing. They said Maltz used the bank's funds for his personal use and floated bond issues to cover mortgages of more than actual value of the real estate.

A bond issue of $100,000, floated to cover two pieces of property ownedby Maltz, were said by officials to have precipitated the closing. The real estate already mortgaged for $33,000 was valued at $30,000 less than the bond issue.

ATTRACTIVE TOYS

Children's toys are put up in such an attractive fashion nowadays that grown-ups find them hard to resist. A most complete set of brooms, brushes, feather dusters, etc., gayly painted and mounted on a blue card makes a most acceptable gift for the small girl.

BANK CLEARINGS

[By Associated Press]

PASADENA, March 21.—Bank clearings today were $792,258.96; same day last year, $588,738.20.

LABOR GROUPS OF EUROPE INTERVENE IN RUHR DISTRICT

Parliamentarians Would Have League of Nations Handle Situation

[By Associated Press]

PARIS, March 21.—A definite move by labor and socialist parliamentary groups to request the British, French, Belgian and Italian governments to place the Ruhr situation in the hands of the League of Nations, was foreshadowed today following a conference of delegates representing these political factions in the several legislative bodies.

Spokesmen of the British laborites and the French, Italian and Italian socialists, declaring that a settlement of the controversy could only be effected "through American intervention or a decision of the League of Nations," came to the conclusion that the question of league assistance should be brought up in the British house of commons and in the chambers of the other governments.

Accordingly, J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, M. Vandervelde of Belgium, Signor Modigliani of Italy and Paul Boncour of France were delegated to carry out the wishes of the conference.

PIGGLY WIGGLY TRADING STOPPED

[By Associated Press]

NEW YORK, March 21.—Piggly Wiggly stock was off the "big board" today after price gyrations as picturesque as its name.

Trading in class "A" common stock of the chain grocery stores was suspended yesterday by the governors of the New York Stock Exchange after one of the most violent price fluctuations in the recent history of the exchange, during which speculators were squeezed for heavy losses.

The shares leaped from 72 to 123 and closed at 82, which was only ten points up from Monday's close.

Jesse L. Livermore, noted trader, issued a statement saying he "had been employed by Clarence Saunders of Memphis, Tenn., president of the corporation, to handle the stock operations and that he had been ordered by Mr. Saunders to suspend all transactions on his account."

Wall street buzzed today with the reports of heavy losses sustained by some professional speculators and comfortable profits made by others. One report said a retired Providence, R. I., grocer, a novice at trading, made a profit of $80,000.

CHINESE WANT KWANGTUNG

[By Associated Press]

PEKING, March 21.—Demonstrations by the people and agitation before the powers in opposition to the continued Japanese occupation of Kwangtung Peninsula are suggested by a number of members of parliament.

These members of parliament telegraphed the provinces asking the people to organize manifestations for March 26, the day on which the old leases on Dairen and Port Arthur expire. Mass meetings were recommended to afford an opportunity for lectures of protest against Japan's refusal to abrogate the treaty of 1915, "the twenty-one demands" which renewed the leases for 50 years.

The parliamentary spokesmen also suggest that cablegrams be sent to the powers asking that the Kwangtung question be submitted to the League of Nations or to the international court of arbitration.

They declare that after the date of expiration of the former leases, the occupation will be considered illegal and that Japan should pay compensation from that time.

TO REMOVE MUD STAINS

If brushing will not remove the mud stains from a garment, rub them with a raw potato. It will not fail.

Pacific-Southwest Review

HERMAN NELSON, Vice-President and Manager Glendale Avenue Branch

HERMAN NELSON

Since the reports of the state banking system are a very good barometer of the growth and prosperity of the state, it is interesting to note the statistics as set forth in a recent article by Jonathan S. Dodge, former state superintendent of banks, in the Los Angeles Express.

One year ago, according to Mr. Dodge, there were 422 banks in the State system, with 221 branch offices, or a total of 643 banking institutions. At the date on which this recent article was written the State banks had increased to 438, with 391 branch offices, or a total of 829 institutions altogether, an increase during the year of 196 banking institutions in the State.

GREAT GAIN IN RESOURCES

"More remarkable than the increase in number of institutions is the increase in the financial resources of the banks themselves," Mr. Dodge continues. "On December 31, 1921, it was believed that the banks of California had reached the high-water mark, when the total of assets in the system had grown to the large proportions of $1,578,557,629.12. It was a matter of congratulation to the State when it was found that the total resources of our State banks had passed the billion and a half mark. It is interesting to note that the momentum of increase that has been evident for the past two years has continued, and at this date California can boast of a total of assets of $1,838,209,750.81. California, although tenth in population, stands fifth in banking power, being exceeded only by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Massachusetts.

"The greatest growth of banking assets has been shown in the savings departments of the banks, thus indicating clearly that our people are alive to the advantages of thrift and the advantages that accrue from the accumulation of the small savings in the solid savings of the State.

PEOPLE ARE THRIFTY

"As an indication that the population of the State is increasing, and that the people are interested in safe investments, it is only necessary to call attention to the fact that one year ago the number of depositors in all the State banks of California was 2,299,564, while one year later this number had grown to 2,661,648."

Throughout the Pacific-Southwest the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank is helping individual savers and, through its service to them, is contributing to the growth of the State banking resources. Saving is not only beneficial to the individual by acting as a reserve for protection against emergencies and providing for future pleasure, but when accumulated and put to use, the combined savings of the people provide the basis for our present form of civilization. These accumulated savings, usually called Capital, are necessary for the progress and expansion and development of any community or territory.

A term savings account may be opened at the Brand Blvd. or Glendale Ave. Branches of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank with one dollar. Other branches are located in Alhambra, Altadena, Atascadero, Carpinteria, Catalina, El Centro, Fresno, Glendale, Guadalupe, Hanford, Huntington Beach, Huntington Park, Lindsay, Lompoc, Long Beach, Los Alamos, Ocean Park, Orcutt, Oxnard, Pasadena, Paso Robles, Redlands, San Fernando, San Luis Obispo, San Pedro, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, Santa Monica, Tulare, Venice, Visalia, Whittier, Wilmington, and many convenient branches in Los Angeles and Hollywood.

'ONE EXCITING NIGHT' CLOSES TONIGHT

When D. W. Griffith, master photoplay producer, made "One Exciting Night," his latest motion picture sensation which closes at the Glendale Theatre tonight, he went all screen comedy makers about two and one-half times better by instilling into this mystery film a play that one might well have thought never could stand the strain.

Just as a clutching hand reaches out with breath-taking suspense, and a disguised figure flits through a nerve-racking scene there is a sudden lilt of syncopated orchestration, and Romeo Washington, stifling in a genuine Louisville yawn, goes out looking for a job. He has no place to go, so he takes the nearest path and goes there.

Lurking figures slink stealthily through the shrubbery. Somebody shoots whoever happens to be standing in his way; doors open unexpectedly; secret panels slide mysteriously; the sequence scales to a crashing cresendo, and Romeo reels off into a reminiscent rhapsody with the little mulatto maid.

SANITARIUM LOTS SOON TO BE PUT ON MARKET

L. R. Caldwell is representing the Guy M. Rush company which has charge of the tract into which the Glendale Sanitarium property fronting on Broadway has been subdivided. He says the subdivision has not yet been passed upon by the county supervisors but that is a mere technicality and reservations are being made by intending customers. One hundred feet have been reserved on Broadway and 100 feet on Jackson. It is expected the Broadway lots which are 25 feet wide will be used for store buildings and apartment houses, and that the Jackson frontage will be taken for bungalow court purposes or apartments. The Broadway lots run back 110 feet to an alley. The lots on Isabel are 50x150.

The nurses' home on Jackson and some adjoining lots owned by the sanitarium are also on the market.

At the last meeting of the cabinet of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club, the suggestion was made that the organization have an "Earn a Dollar Evening" and so well did the idea take that at the regular business session ten captains were appointed and teams organized.

The proceeds are to be turned in by the captains next Tuesday evening with reports of how the money was earned and it promises to provide a very interesting program. Some of the enterprising members have more than earned their dollars already, under the plan that the money was to be secured outside regular avocations.

One prominent member has been giving taxi service and washing windows. Another has been doing private shampooing. Others have given lunches and card parties and done fine laundering, darning and mending.

PASEMAN IS PLEASED WITH GLENDALE PEOPLE

The proprietor of the new florist shop at 207 East Broadway, Mr. Paseman, says that he selected Glendale as the scene of his first venture in business for himself, because he thought it the kind of a town he would like to stay with and the kind of a town in which a business like his would thrive.

He has had twenty years' experience as a florist and designer for other people, beginning the work when he was a mere lad, and has been employed in Los Angeles and other cities of the coast so he knows the needs of the trade quite thoroughly.

Bowing to circumstances is apt to be enforced politeness.

MAYOR ACTS AS TRAFFIC COP

READING, Tex., Mar. 21.—Mayor John K. Stauffer is a firm believer in the old adage "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," and to prove his contention that 45 minutes was not too long a trick for traffic officers to work, he donned a uniform and for two hours directed traffic at the coldest and busiest corner in the city. The day he chose was the coldest of the year.

The mayor recently reduced the periods of traffic officers from one hour to 45 minutes. The men then asked a further reduction in the time.

After two hours' work, the mayor said: "This job, of course, isn't the most pleasant in cold weather, but it isn't half as bad as that of the night patrolman who pounds his beat continuously for 11 hours in all kinds of weather."

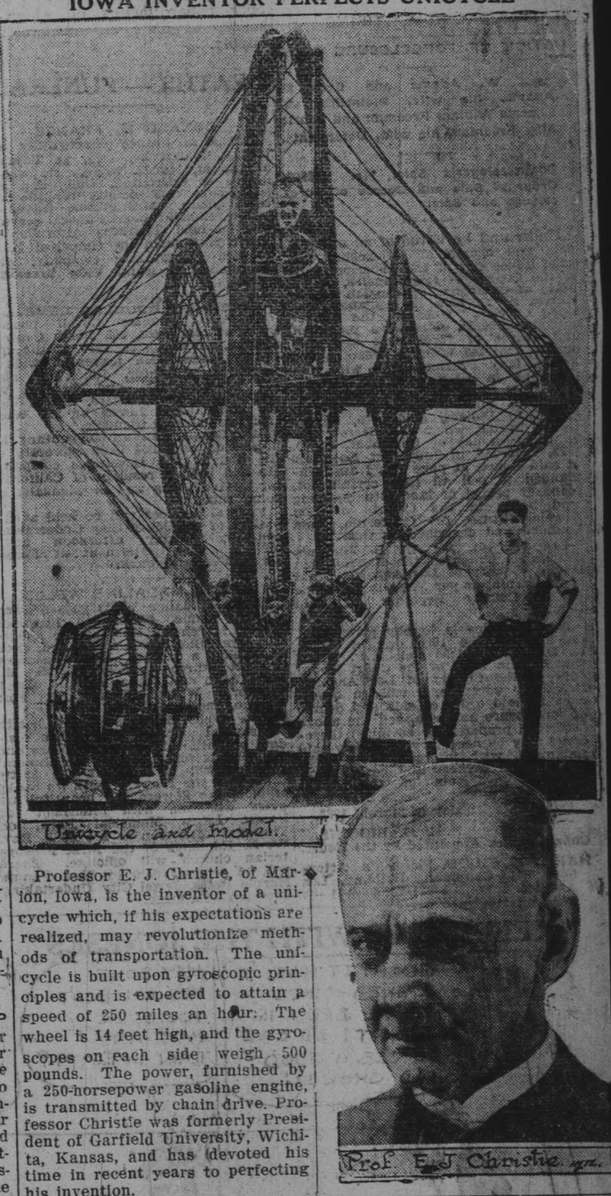
IOWA INVENTOR PERFECTS UNICYCLE



Professor E. J. Christie, of Marion, Iowa, is the inventor of a unicycle which, if his expectations are realized, may revolutionize methods of transportation. The unicycle is built upon gyroscopic principles and is expected to attain a speed of 250 miles an hour. The wheel is 14 feet high, and the gyroscopes on each side weigh 500 pounds. The power, furnished by a 250-horsepower gasoline engine, is transmitted by chain drive. Professor Christie was formerly President of Garfield University, Wichita, Kansas, and has devoted his time in recent years to perfecting his invention.

Besides making an effort to improve the homes and surroundings, the municipal authorities have established dining rooms where breakfast is served for 10 sen (five cents) and dinner and supper for 15 sen each. Technical schools also are being started where boys will be given free instruction in carpentry and other trades.

HOLLYWOOD LEGION TO STAGE CHAMP WRESTLING

Johnny Meyers to Defend Middle Weight Title Against Sandow

With the announcement that Johnny Meyers, middleweight wrestling champion, will meet Sammy Sandow, the Long Beach boy, who held the champion to a draw their last meeting, wrestling interest has taken another big jump in Los Angeles. There has been a clamor for a return match between Meyers and Sandow. This match is carrying out the plan that Promoter William Flynn and Matchmaker Ed Ratsch promised the fans some time ago. The carrying out of this scheme of operation accounts for the big increase in wrestling interest in this city.

Then men are to weigh in at 3 o'clock the day of the match at 258 pounds, give or take two pounds.

At their last meeting the famous stopper hold of the champion was barred and he had to depend on his double wrist lock to keep his belt and title. But it is different this match. The only hold barred is the strength hold. Besides Meyers did not have sufficient time to prepare for his last match, as he came here from Chicago with only one day to train in.

The contest will be a fall or decision match—one must be declared a winner.

The main bouts will be in the ring at 9:30 sharp.

RUSSIAN STATE BANKS ARE REAL GOLD MINES

[By Associated Press]

MOSCOW, Feb. 26.—Ten million dollars worth of gold, in Russian rubles and glistening ingots of bullion, are heaped up in the treasure vaults of the Russian state bank, the results of one year's activity of this Soviet financial institution.

Twelve months ago it started doing business with a capital of depreciated paper rubles. Under the management of old-time Russian bankers, who never hesitated to take big profits, and urged along the same lines by the national necessity to accumulate real money, the bank has been adding daily to its reserve fund.

An American, for example, takes a perfectly good check for $500 to this bank to be cashed. He waits an hour and receives a slip of paper bearing cabalistic figure showing that the cashier will hand him $475 for the check. Thereupon he can easily understand how some of these profits have been made. The state bank has a monopoly on foreign exchange, but it will pay in actual American or English currency for the checks it receives, and the average foreigner much perfers to pay five per cent and receive real money, instead of an armload of Soviet paper.

Another advantageous practice of the bank is to change dollars into rubles, paying practically the same rate as the money changers on the illegal bourse. The difference may be only a few thousand rubles on the dollar, but it is enough to add to the constant trickle of profits to the state bank's till.

At the beginning of 1922 it was estimated that about 300,000,000 gold rubles were still in the hands of the peasants and other private persons in Russia, having been buried or stowed away in old socks against a rainy day. The opening of legal banking operations, and the frank winking on the part of government authorities at operations on the so-called illegal bourse have coaxed many millions of this gold from its hiding places. A considerable portion has found its way to the state bank, which sends its own agents to these illegal bourses and offers for this gold, and for foreign currency, higher prices than the private traders can afford. tor this the bank, of course, pays only paper money of which it seems to have an inexhaustible supply.

BOOZE PROFIT $1,020 BARREL

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 21.—A net profit of $1,020 is made on each 48-gallon barrel of bonded whiskey when sold by authorized dealers, through a physician's prescription, at the present rate of $4 a pint, according to prohibition officers here.

A much greater profit is made by bootleggers dealing in illegal sales of moonshine, the prohibition authorities stated.

Bonded liquor, including the tax, is sold to licensed dealers at approximately $300 per barrel. Each barrel, allowing for shrinkage, contains about 330 pints, and brings $1,320 when sold at the rate of $4 a pint, or a net profit of $1,020.

The wholesale price for a pint of liquor, exclusive of tax, is 78 cents, according to prohibition agents. Gin costs 98 cents a pint wholesale, and retails for $4.80; brandy costs $1.42 a pint wholesale and retails for $5.50 a pint.

Hubby, in no very good humor, was in the back yard mending the clothes line when the fat lady who lived a block away, rounded the corner of the house.

"Is your wife at home, Mr. Stevens?"

"Do you supose I'd be doing this if she wasn't?"

JEWS OF VERDUGO HILLS CALLED TO PASADENA

The dance to be held on Thursday evening of this week at Odd Fellows' hall, Pasadena, by the local Jewish congregation and their friends from Sierra Madre, Glendale, Eagle Rock, South Pasadena, Alhambra, San Gabriel, Arcadia, Monrovia and Lamanda Park, has taken on added importance through the leaking out of the rumor, that on that evening definite announcement is planned to be made of the date for the formal opening of the new Temple, which this congregation is now completing at the corner of Walnut and Hudson streets. The board of trustees and building committee have during the last ten days been bending all their efforts to the end that would make possible the holding of services in the new house of worship on the Feast of the Passover, which by mere coincidence of calendars this year falls on the same date with Easter Sunday. This fact is expected to bring out a very large attendance, as it is an announcement for which the Jewish inhabitants of Pasadena and surrounding territory have been waiting for three years or more. Another circumstance, that will assuredly swell attendance on Thursday evening is the announcement that some lucky attendant at this dance will drive home in a brand new Buick sedan, lock it in his or her garage, and call it his or her own. The general committee chairman, Mr. A. L. Vener, is going about these days with a broad grin of satisfaction and feeling of assurance that the success of his "party" is guaranteed in advance by these announcements, as well as by the fact that Mrs. Weissbach has assured him the refreshments would report on time a-plenty in both variety and quantity. Mrs. S. Gerson of Sierra Madre has promised syncopation de luxe from the orchestra she is providing, and Mrs. Fischman of Pasadena has a reception committee lined up that will send the attendants from surrounding territories home thoroughly well acquainted with all the Hebrew residents of the Crown City.

STATISTICIAN OF BOND HOUSE TO SPEAK AT HI

Mrs. Fern Dell Hunt, statistician for Blyth, Witter & Co., Los Angeles, has been secured to address the investment class of the Glendale Evening school on the subject of corporation securities next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the high school. Mrs. Hunt will make clear the distinction between stocks and bonds and while devoting a few words of stocks, will confine most of her time to bonds. She will point out why and how bonds are issued, marketed, redeemed and retired and in the course of the talk will explain what some of the various terms mean, such as first mortgage bonds, general and refunding bonds, equipment bonds, collateral bonds, etc.

This will be the first of a series of talks to be given in connection with the investment class by people who are experts in their respective fields. In order that the entire community may benefit by the advantages which the night school offers the general public is invited to attend these talks. No admission will be charged.

"I do wish you would quit licking stamps," complained the wife of the amateur author. "It's vulgar and unsanitary; and besides I gave you a perfectly good stamp-moistener on your last birthday."

"I wasn't licking those stamps, dear," said the amateur author, with a sad quality in his voice, "I was only kissing them good-bye!"

FREDERICK WILLIAM I.

was the second ruler of the new Kingdom of Prussia (1713-1740). He created a greater army, increasing its size from 27,000 to 84,000, thus competing with France or Austria. His son, Frederick II., was called "Frederick the Great."

DR. HADDEN TELLS OF ABRAHAM'S PROBLEMS

"The Problem of Abraham" occupied the attention of the audience at the Glendale Presbyterian Church last evening when Dr. Hadden addressed them. In a terse telling manner he sketched the entire life of "The Father of the Faithful," and drew therefrom a number of startling deductions.

Abraham is known as "the friend of God" and also as "the man of God." He was doubtless an idolator in early life. But God appeared to him at least seven times calling him out of the east to a land which he knew not. He went out under "sealed orders." For forty-nine years he served God proving his faith by his works. For all this time he was unjustified. He paid tithes, he served God faithfully, he did many good works, yet he was unjustified. He even received the commendation of Almighty God. One may be as religious as an angel and go to hell. Christianity does not consist in doing certain things to please God. No man is saved unless he be justified. I can believe all of God's word and not be justified. Crying or praying or groaning or agonizing will not save a man. Nothing can save but a person. Nothing can save or justify but Christ. We are justified, or reckoned as perfect, only in Christ. None can depend on anything else but the finished work of Christ. Give Him all the glory and the praise and the honor and simply trust Him alone for salvation.

Dr. Hadden spoke this afternoon on "The Problem of the Four Gospels." He will speak again this evening at the time of the prayer-meeting service. There will be special music and plans are being made for an unusually large attendance.

"THE HERO" TO OPEN AT THE T. D. & L. THEATER

"The Hero," which is the feature film opening at the T., D. & L. Theatre, is the fourth release of Preferred Pictures, the company that has been making Katherine MacDonald's starring pictures for several years past and that recently announced its intention to go into producing on a larger scale with a schedule calling for the issuing of one picture a month.

The distinguishing point of the productions that have been already made by them as well as those to come is stories based on well known books and plays enacted not by one star but by a group of featured players. The first special Preferred Picture was "Rich Men's Wives," in which House Peters and Claire Windsor played.

"The Hero" when enacted in New York as a stage play last season was proclaimed a leading success. Its picture version has been directed by Louis Gasnier with a cast including Barbara La Marr, Gaston Glass, David Butler, Doris Pawn and Frankie Lee.

THE JETER REVIVAL TABERNACLE IS UNDER WAY

At the corner of Cedar and Broadway a structure is going up. It is the tabernacle which is to be usde by Jerry Jeter for evangelistic services, under the auspices of the Methodist church south, and it is expected that it will be ready next Tuesday. The building will seat about 3000 and there will be seats in the choir loft for 300 singers. It will be used for three or four weeks and will then be torn down.

Rev. Jeter says he has been in the ministry for thirty years and in evangelistic work for ten years. He was born in Virginia and is the old southern type of revivalist. He says the meetings will be community affairs, that he has no use for denominational lines and everybody will be welcome.

Directing the building of the tabernacle was Rev. Barr, pastor of the Glendale Methodist church, south, who seemed very handy with saw and square.

PERSHING SUBWAY MEANS DELAY IN VALLEY TUNNEL

P. E. General Manager Replies to Planning Committee's Project

Replying to resolutions recently passed by the City Planning Commission of Los Angeles, recommending that the P. E. stay its work on the Hill street tunnel to the Glendale-San Fernando district, and switch to the Pershing Square subway project, D. W. Pontius in a statement issued today declared the right-of-way out of the Hill street surface terminal had been purchased and contracts are ready to be let. He urged that prompt decision on where the tunnel is wanted be taken.

The resolutions of the city planning commission and the statement of Mr. Pontius follow:

City Planning Commission resolution passed by the executive committee and the City Planning Commission, as a whole, on Tuesday, March 6, 1923, follows:

"Whereas, the present plan of the Pacific Electric Railway is to build a tunnel or subway, costing $3,000,000, leading from the Hill street station between Fourth and Fifth streets, west to connect up with the Pacific Electric line on Glendale boulevard, for the purpose of serving the Hollywood, San Fernando Valley and Glendale-Burbank district; and,

"Whereas, on account of the station on Hill street being located at grade, if this tunnel is built it will not fit in with any other subways that the city of Los Angeles desires to work out for the handling of suburban and interurban traffic, which is due to the fact that the tunnel would reach Hill street station at grade: and,

"Whereas, when the state railroad commission made an exhaustive study of Pacific Electric Railway conditions, Chief Engineer Sachse, of that commission, recommended that the Pacific Electric railway instead of providing a station on grade at Hill street, should locate its station and terminal facilities under the city park, Pershing Square, so that it would fit up with other developments of subways in the city of Los Angeles; further, other eminent public utility engineers and those who have made studies of Los Angeles' congested traffic conditions and transportation facilities, such as Samuel Storrow, F. D. Howell, George A. Damon and many others, have suggested and urged that this terminal be located under Pershing Square, which, it is estimated, will cost something near $1,500,000 more to locate the station there than it would cost to locate it at the site of the present Hill street station: and,

"Whereas, since it would not interfere with the use of Pershing Square as a city park, to locate the station and terminal under the square, which is the key to adequately providing the city with subways for the handling of suburban and interurban traffic, making it possible to carry the subway along Sixth street to the Sixth and Main street station of the Pacific Electric; connect up with the present property of the Pacific Electric railway at the Hill street station and private right-of-way leading from that station to Vineyard, for the building of what is known as the Venice subway to serve the Santa Monica bay district; can be built along under Olive street branching off at Seventh, Ninth, Eleventh or any other street to the west for the purpose of connecting up with the Pacific Electric's private right-of-way for the Venice subway to adequately serve the Santa Monica Bay district.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Pacific Electric management be urged to locate the terminal and station under Pershing Square at this time instead of Hill street between Fourth and Fifth streets, particularly for the reason that when once located the location of the terminal and station cannot be changed on account of requiring a different tunnel grade for the two locations.

"Be it further resolved, that the Los Angeles city council, the Los Angeles traffic commission, the board of public utilities, the Community Development Association, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and all other public bodies in the city of Los Angeles ,urge that the Pacific Electric Railway company, which is about to commence construction of the subway, change their plans and locate their terminal under Pershing Square instead of on Hill street between Fourth and Fifth streets for the reasons given above.

"City Planning Commission of the City of Los Angeles.
(Signed)
"C. GORDON WHITNALL,
"Secretary."

The statement by D. W. Pontius, vice-president and general manager Pacific Electric Railway company, follows:

"In connection with the recommendation made by the City Planning Commission, which has been endorsed by various civic bodies of the city, such as the Los Angeles Traffic Commission, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and the Community Development Association, in which the Pacific Electric is requested to reconsider its tunnel and locate the terminal under Pershing Square, D. W. Pontius had the following to say:

"The City Planning Commission has unquestionably proposed a plan that is very much to the interest of the city and the endorsement yesterday by the various public bodies shows a ready appreciation of that fact. It means that instead of locating the terminal for the subway serving Hollywood, Glendale and the other communities reached by the same electric railway lines, at the street surface in the present terminal facing Hill street, it would be a real subway terminal underneath the surface of Pershing Square where connection could be made with any other subways that might hereafter be built no matter under what auspices, thus making possible a centralized terminal and symmetrical system that interconnects in all directions with sub-terminals wherever they might be needed.

"If instead the Hill street surface terminal is used then it cannot subsequently be changed because of difference in grades and in the end the subway system serving the city would be disconnected. There would be a further advantage in the location and the available space. Am informed that the city is in position to grant franchise for subway surface rights.

"From the Pacific Electric viewpoint the serious problem of expending probably a million and a half dollars more, since sub-surface terminals are expensive, is presented. The expenditure could be justified only in the hope that it might fit into the future plans, beneficial alike to the city and to the railway. It could not be justified on the basis of any increased volume of business in connection with the construction now authorized. We recognize fully though the force of the City Planning Commission's idea with respect to the future and for that reason will make effort at once to secure the necessary money if this project is officially approved.

"The subways immediately to be built with the terminal under Pershing Square, will, of course, greatly relieve traffic congestion on Hill and Sixth streets, to the very great advantage of the city and to the people in the Hollywood, Glendale, San Fernando Valley and other districts lying to the north and west. The service would not only be much quicker but would be made regular since there would be no street interference and a central terminal location would be provided.

"As has already been announced the work on the subway with the old location of terminal at Hill street, has been authorized and the right-of-way has been substantially all purchased and we are now ready to let contracts in accord with the agreement of the railroad commission, to furnish improved service to Hollywood, Glendale and the other districts concerned. Therefore a prompt decision should be reached in connection with the City Planning Commission's project in order that relief may be had at the earliest possible moment."

MRS. HARRIS HAS GOOD NEWS OF SONS

Mrs. L. D. Fish Harris of Glendale has just received some encouraging news regarding some mines owned by her sons, Albert, Arthur and Frank Fish. These gold mines are located in Iron mountain on Rock creek, about 20 miles from Powers, Ore., and it is believed that they have struck the main lode of gold-bearing ore in that section, and they have been developing these mines with their own resources, although they have had many opportunities to secure capital. They have been prospecting and mining in that section for the past eight years. Another part who also has mines near them has just taken in an Ellis Ball stamp mill of seven tons capacity, and has a fine showing.

Fish brothers have samples of very high grade quartz and nuggets the size of a half dollar and weighing three or four times as much.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

THE SCIENCE OF PERFECTION

By

Frank Bell, C. S. B.
of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts

The Bible avers that all things were made by God, that without Him was not anything made that was made. The Bible avers that God saw, comprehended, all that He had made, creation in its entirety, and behold, it was very good. It was right.

The Bible avers that everything was made, all reality, not only was in the beginning perfect and complete, but is now and everlastingly will be perfect and complete. In the words of Ecclesiastes (3:14), "whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it."

These declarations are true, not only because they appear in the Bible. They are true because they could not possibly be untrue. Reason and logic affirm the sublimely simple proposition that the intelligence and ability to create a universe imply the intelligence and ability to create it aright.

But while revelation and reason agree as to the unanswerable fact, human sense argues through a thousand daily experiences, that discord, fear, sin, and disease, myriad forms and phases of evil, do exist, are a part of actuality; that creation, if it ever was good and right, was not sufficiently good and right to remain forever good and right.

There is conflict, in other words, between pure reason and human experience. This conflict is apparently so one-sided that the propositions of scholastic theology seem sometimes to be reduced almost to a basis of mere blind hope of better things in another world; while materialism is tempted to continue the quest for contentment in things seen and felt, and animality is glad for an excuse to wallow in forgetfulness. These expedients of course do not suffice. Fear and doubt walk hand in hand with blind hope. There is no real satisfaction in material things. Pangs of suffering disturb the dream of sensualism. Human history testifies that the way of the believer in imperfection is hard.

Fortunately, in all ages there have been prophets and seers who were not wholly deceived by the apparently overwhelming weight of material sense testimony on the wrong side. A discussion of Christian Science involves consideration of the fact that in the nineteenth century a woman saw the incongruity between the truth of being and the experiences of human life. She saw that perfect God and imperfect man could not both be true. Imperfection could not be real unless God, the creator of all, is its author. Imperfect creation could be the product only of imperfect creator. To her the question was clear-cut and unescapable. Her answer was such as would be inevitable from one who loved God whole-heartedly and pure-mindedly as did Mary Baker Eddy. In her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," page 113, she writes: "Acoording to the Scripture, I find that God is true, 'but every [mortal] man a liar.'" The sense of things that denies the perfection of God and His creation is false.

This fundamental proposition of Christian Science is indeed "according to the Scripture." Writes St. Paul to Timothy: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect." The purpose of the Bible is to reprove, correct, instruct in righteousness, until naught remains that denies the perfection of God's man. According to the Scripture, God is true, and aught that argues to the contrary is false.

The Scripture, it will be observed, is intended not merely to affirm the goodness of God, but by reproof, correction, and instruction, to destroy whatever appears to be in the way of the realization of God's goodness. The goodness of God has been preached for centuries by those who were ready to accept the Scripture as profitable for doctrine. But when confronted with the conflict between the goodness of God, as a theory, and the apparent evidence of the actuality of evil in human experienec, mankind needs something more than doctrine.

What is need in this emergency is Science, something that will work; something that will work rightly, Christianly, toward the end of the Scriptural intent; in other words, Christian Science, which, after the manner of the Scriptures, reproves, corrects, instructs, that the evidence that makes for imperfection may be undone.

When Mrs. Eddy learned that it is the physical senses which presume to take issue with God's perfection, she saw that it is the impressions of these senses which constitute what the Bible terms the carnal mind, that it, enmity against God. If God's man is all right, the mind or sense which says that he is partly wrong is a lying mind, a false sense; and it is the business of scriptural Christianity to reprove, correct, and instruct thought until the false sense disappears, that "the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

Mrs. Eddy calls this false sense of things mortal mind, to distinguish it from immortal Mind, which latter is properly spelled with a capital M, for it is a complete synonym for God. When Paul declared that salvation should be found in taking on the mind that was in Christ Jesus, he of course knew that Jesus had distinctly repudiated the so-called mind or sense of things that accepted any evidence of reality in aught unlike the nature of God.

Mortal mind must be put off. Why? Because it is composed of that material sense which is unable to resist the temptation to believe that mindless, inert, nonintelligent matter has the capacity within itself to think, to act, to live; to believe that man, therefore, is not the image and likeness of God, Spirit, but is a piece of physical mechanism. Mortal mind consists of the thoughts that it thinks. Therefore, as the Bible declares, "we wrestle not against flesh and blood." We are engaged in a warfare against wrong thinking. Christian Science is that which will continue through the ages to reprove, correct, instruct, until there shall remain not one impious suggestion of denial that the man of God is spiritual and perfect, and the transcendent purpose of Scripture will be in truth fulfilled. It is a good thing to have a part in such glorious activity.

THE GOAL OF ALL RELIGION

If the doctrine of the perfection of God and all His works, as proclaimed by Christian Science, seems to emphasize some of the differences between Christian Science and other religious teachings, we wish to give assurance that we have no quarrel with persons who differ from us. In her dedicatory message to her church in 1906 Mrs. Eddy wrote: "A genuine Christian Scientist loves Protestant and Catholic, D. D. and M. D., loves all who love God, good; and he loves his enemies." (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, page 4.)

Men have hated each other in the name of religion, but never in the nature of religion. "He that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" Anything that would cause one person to hate another person is not scientific Christianity, is not Christianity at all.

Christian Scientists recognize that they are today reaping a rich spiritual heritage from the lives and thoughts, the strivings and sacrifices of consecrated men and women who have gone before. We would not close our minds to one iota of good that has come out of the unutterable devotion of the ages. We are profoundly grateful for all that the church, under whatever title, has accomplished in the preservation o' the good in all religions. Every right thought and deed in the past has helped to clear the way for the present.

Mrs. Eddy expresses this beautifully in her Message for 1902 (p. 2), wherein she says: "I never left the Church, either in heart or in doctrine; I but began where the Church left off. When the churches and I round the gospel of grace, in the circle of love, we shall meet again, never to part."

The Christian Scientist who has come out of a former church relationship is not called upon to abandon anything good or true. He has begun in the new vision where he left off in the old. He is not starting all over. He is pressing forward.

If there has come to him a clearer sense of the perfection of God, and if therefore it is inconsistent for him to hold to some of the former concepts, may he not take his steps without offense to those who are still finding comfort in the old views? If in contemplation of the perfection of God I am impressed with the conviction that perfection could not be the author of imperfection, and if therefore I cannot hold to theories that involve the failure of anything that God has made to maintain perpetually the perfection with which his nature necessarily has endowed it, who shall deny to me the right to retain and express this conviction, that there is no essential reality in aught that does not conform to the nature of the one and only creator? Shall I be swerved because some one may think I am trying to believe in too good a God?

If my neighbor chooses to believe that material man is the fallen image of God, I have no quarrel with him. For myself it has ceased to be possible for me to accept the proposition that the image and likeness of God, Spirit, could be material, or could fall. Can perfection evolve imperfection? Can good degenerate into evil? One might as well say that light can produce darkness.

What you or I may believe does not, of course, alter the essential realities. Facts are facts, however much we may misapprehend. The earth was just as round when every one believed it to be flat. The only effect of that mistaken belief was to hamper the mistaken believer. If God's man is truly His image and likeness, and therefore is spiritual and unfallen, then a belief that man is material and fallen will be hurtful only to the one who believes it.

Would it not be a wonderful thing if you were to awaken to a realization that all the imperfection in so-called human experience—the evil, the sin, the sickness, the suffering, the sorrow, the lack, the pain—is such as that, the fruit merely of mistaken concepts as to the true nature of reality? Would you not welcome such a realization? You are confronted with the opportunity to approach such a realization. The Bible asserts it in its purity. The patriarchs and prophets discerned it. Jesus of Nazareth practiced it. His true followers have never wholly lost sight of it. The explicit rule and method of it are to be found in the textbook of Christian Science.

THE MEDICINE OF CHRISTIANITY

Spiritual healing is recorded throughout the Scriptures. It appears to have been practiced by nearly all of the great figures in the Bible. It especially distinguished the ministry of Jesus. Among various theories in explanation of this healing, the one generally entertained by creedal religionists is that it was miraculous in the sense of involving a suspension or suppression of natural law. Certain psychologists profess to believe that it was the effect of mental suggestion or hypnotism.

Jesus himself repudiated both theories. He said he came to fulfill the law not to destroy or to annul it; not a jot or tittle of the law should pass till all be fulfilled. The works that he did, he said his followers should do in proportion to their understanding. And the record is that his followers proved this, not only during his time, but for three centuries thereafter, or until creeds usurped the authority of the Christ. His followers are again proving this today, in proportion to their understanding.

That Jesus was not a mesmerist or hypnotist is shown by the rule he repeatedly expounded for himself and his followers—"Not my will, but thine, be done." The effort of mental suggestion is to impose one human will upon another. Jesus denounced human will and proclaimed the will of God to be the only real will-power. That rule brought healing to the sick nineteen centuries ago, and it brings healing to the sick today.

The rule, "Not my will, but thine, be done," is, of course, the rule of perfection. God's will is perfect. Thought that is open to the fundamental rightness of being catches something of the spiritual import of Jesus' teaching, and this improved state of mind manifests itself, after its kind, in outward conditions and affairs. Jesus must have meant this when he said regarding one of his healings, "Thy faith hath made thee whole." His affirmation of God's will that no man is perfect had encountered a measure of acceptance, and that improved state of mind which he named faith, expressed itself in a corresponding state of body, as states of mind never fail to do. Where there was impenetrable unbelief, where the windows of thought were not open to the affirmations of the will of God, it is recorded that he did not many mighty works. In such cases was the prophecy of Esaias fulfilled: "For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them." The scientific relationship between mind and state of health is affirmed in the Scriptures.

What did these unhealed ones need to understand with their hearts that they might experience health? Was it drugs, or serums, or germs, or antitoxins, or diet, or exercise, or calories, or health laws that they needed to learn more about? Must they await the verdict of chemist, bacteriologist, vivisector? Surely it could not have been for lack of any such knowledge that Jesus in certain instances did not his mighty works.

The explanation is clear. Their minds were closed to the truth he understood and offered, the truth which he declared would free, and which did make free wherever and to the extent that it was accepted, as it does today. If they should understand and be converted they should be healed. The rule of Christian healing has not altered. Heaven and earth shall pass away but the word of the Great Physician shall not.

Nor shall the requirement change. The mental eyes must be opened, the mental ears must be unstopped, so that there may be understanding and conversion and healing. You who are sick, weary, afraid, how much of willingness is there in your heart to listen to the "Be ye therefore perfect" of the Christ? You think thousands of thoughts every day. What proportion of these thoughts are of such a nature as to have any tendency in the direction of converting or transforming your sense of things into realization that both God and God's man are perfect? To what extent are you listening to the suggestion that the weight of evidence of imperfection is so overwhelming that there is no use trying to contradict it? I know how pride of intellect, fear of being though ridiculous, self-sufficiency, doubt, indifference, every phase of human will, would shut the eyes and the ears of the heart against the Christly message of the essential perfection of God's creation, including man. But I know that somewhere in the apparently impenctrable barrier of material sense is a crevice open, through which, if you are in earnest, you may catch a glimpse of at least a tiny ray of spiritual light. There is no heart so gross, no intellectuality so hard, no selfishness so dense that diligent search will not reveal a spark of an impulse to repudiate the mental suggestions that constitute the sum total of human belief in evil. The floods of discouragement are not sufficient utterly to destroy that saving instinct to believe in the ultimate rightness of things, regardless of appearance. You will find this germ of truth if you search for it with all your heart. Nurture it. Feed it with the love of which you are capable. Mentally tend and water this precious flower of thought. Diligently pull away the weeds of materialism that would choke it back. You will find other lovely realizations hidden but not killed under the rank accumulation of your neglected mental garden.

Then shall be fulfilled in your twentieth-century experiences another prophecy of Esaias: The eyes of the blind shall be open; the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped; in the wilderness shall waters break forth; and a highway shall be there; and the ransomed shall return; and shall obtain joy and gladness; and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

This is good medicine, this doctrine of perfection, this Christian Science. Countless thousands of your fellow-men have found it so. It is God's healing gift to you, yours for the taking and the using.

ACCUSATION AGAINST GOD

The Christian Scientist combats disease on the basis that it is a manifestation of imperfection. It is an impudent assertion of the existence of a power apart from the omnipotent God. The conditions of disease would affirm that man, to whom God gave dominion, is in subjection to evil; that man, whom God made in His image and likeness, the likeness of perfection, is a poor, helpless thing, crippled, hampered, ultimately killed by nonintelligent, inanimate matter.

The Christian Scientist apprehends that it is a part of his Christian duty to disprove the affirmations of disease, to add to the accumulation of evidence that sin, disease, and death are neither created, sanctioned, nor tolerated by God. It is because the Christian Scientist is awakening to the essential ungodliness of evil that he regards the healing of disease by spiritual means as a distinctly religious activity. The primary motive in this activity is the demonstration of the perfection of man, and this not for the gratification of man, but for the glory of God.

When the people, at sight of the healings of Jesus, glorified God, it must have been because they caught the religious significance of what was taking place. Jesus, of course, understood this. He declared that it was the Father with him doing the works. He did always those things which pleased the Father. Of himself he could do nothing. He was about his Father's business, and that business, according to the record, had largely to do with healing.

Jesus distinctly commanded his disciples to go into the world and to heal the sick, and they were to teach all men all things he had commanded them. Certain signs, he said, should follow them that believed, certifying to the genuineness of their discipleship. Among these signs he specifically named the healing of disease. Those who loved him would keep his commandments. Could the authority for healing as an indispensable part of Christianity be more complete? Surely it is the business of religion to meet and master everything unlike God. Surely nothing could be more unlike God than disease.

May not, then, the administration of drugs or material remedies be worthy to be classified with Christian healing? As to motive perhaps sometimes, yes; as to method, no. Love that seeks to bless and to comfort may not be denied its measure of goodness. Christian Scientists applaud every unselfish desire to relieve suffering, even while marveling at the zeal with which some professed followers of the Master seek to improve on his methods.

That which distinguishes truly Christian healing from drugs, hygiene, or hypnotism is that Christian healing involves moral regeneration. The renewing of the mind is primary, the healing of the body an incidental effect. The purpose is to bring out the perfection of man in the likeness of God, Spirit; therefore complete physical health, so-called, without a corresponding illumination of spiritual sense, would lack a Christian essential. Mere physical health is possible in the lowest animal.

Jesus' recipe for health was (John 5:14): "Sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." Those who are not ready to be better men and women are not ready for true Christian healing. But one need not too hastily assume that he is unready to be better. Often those who come with no other conscious desire than to be relieved of pain, find that without knowing it they are seeking release from sin. The leaven of righteousness is working unseen in many a heart.

THE NATURE OF SIN

Christian Science has been accused of unduly emphasizing the healing of disease, whereas the prime purpose of religion is to save from sin. A sufficient answer, to a Christian, should be the gospel record of Jesus, who by both his example and his specific command to his followers identified the healing of the sick with the religion of Christianity.

Promotion of mere physical ease would not of itself be worthy of religion. What the critic possibly has failed to see is that true Christian healing is identical with the destruction of sin. They cannot be separated.

What is sin? In the first place it is mental. Back of sinful act always is sinful thought. Mere restraint of sinful deed leaves sin untouched. Jesus has said that thinking adultery is committting adultery. Therefore the sin of adultery remains until every adulterous thought is destroyed.

In the second place, sin is not only a matter of thinking, but of imperfect thinking. If St. Paul's statement to Timothy is correct, that the inspiration of all Scripture is to the end "that the man of God may be perfect," then whatever would stand in the way of realization of perfection is sin. If it is true, as according to St. John, that "now are we the sons of God," even though that fact "doth not yet appear," then everything that would prevent that appearing is sin.

In one of the very helpful hymns in the Christian Science Hymnal are these lines:

"Whatever dims thy sense of truth,
Or stains thy purity,
Though light as breath of summer air,
Count it as sin to thee."

Sin includes every thought or concept that helps to make up the sum total of a physical sense of existence in which imperfection reigns. The truth about man is that he now lives, moves, and has his being in God, as the Bible declares. Therefore, man now lives, moves, and has his being in Spirit, not in matter. If one says, My whole sense of things denies that, then the answer is that the more completely a sense of things denies the reality of being, the more completely sinful is such sense of things.

St. John writes in the second chapter of his first epistle: "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not . . . Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world . . . For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, . . . is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever."

The coming of him who was described as "without sin" was prophetically heralded thus: "He shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears: . . . and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth." The sinless Nazarene verified this prophecy. The record presents him as repudiating every evidence of physical sense, annulling every assertion of material law, denying and casting out every argument of material belief, smiting with the rod of his mouth the countless suggestions of the sight of the eyes and the hearing of the ears, such as today would tempt you and me to believe that "all that is in the world" is true and real, and therefore God-made.

"All that is in the world" is in truth "not of the Father," as St. John said. The sinfulness of material belief is, manifestly, its enmity against God. If material things are real, God made them or He is not the only creator. If God made material things, He must have made the bad things as well as the good things. Would a God who made bad things be a good God? Is it any wonder that the beloved son of God should refuse to base his judgment on what the eyes saw and the ears heard?

The disciple of materialism may say, I cannot deny that which my eyes plainly see and my ears clearly hear. The answer is, Then you must accept responsibility for maintaining an impudent accusation against God. You may choose to try to ignore this responsibility, but you cannot avoid paying the price. The practice of Christian Science, now verified by the accumulated proof of half a century of active operation, demonstrates that the ills of the flesh are due to the beliefs of the flesh, to a false sense of life in matter and apart from Spirit. In the proportion that the Christian of today learns to master the sinful sense of reality in aught that is not of the nature of God, is Christian healing achieved.

It is not true that one cannot deny the evidence of the material senses. He who says he cannot means only that, as yet, he will not. Whosoever will may come. There is a way out. It is the way of the great Way-shower, who was without sin because he was without belief in the reality of anything that would deny that man is now the complete son of God; the Way-shower, who from the standpoint of his utter repudiation of the sight of the eyes and the hearing of the ears, could say with absolute conviction to men and women of his time, men and women like you and me, "The kingdom of God is within you." "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

TRUE IDEAL ESSENTIAL

Shall it be said that it is inconsistent, as some critics appear to believe, for the Christian Scientist to make a practice of affirming the perfection of God and all that He has created, including man, while yet the Christian Scientist, in his human experience, is far from perfect?

Suppose you were to undertake to climb to the top of a mountain, where, as far as you are aware, no one ever has been. Your destination is the top, but neither you nor any one else has ever seen it or set foot upon it. You insist, however, that the mountain has a top. In fact, you know the top is there, though no physical sense perceives it. Reason tells you that there could not be a mountain without a top. You know it just as well as though you had been there and seen it.

Suppose there was a superior person at hand, who would say: "How absurd to affirm something you have not seen! I will believe the mountain has a top when you can show it to me." Which of you is absurd? How could you show him unless he went with you? Will the mountain stoop to prove itself to even so superior a person? Mahomet was wiser. When the mountain would not come to him, Mahomet went to the mountain.

We are always sorry when our critics behave like that superior person, when they seem to find inconsistency in the Christian Scientist's affirming the perfectability of being while yet struggling with the claims of imperfection. The critics are not always quite fair to us. They themselves doubtless are aware that every step in human progress has been made possible because aspiration ranged ahead of accomplishment. The artist's ideal is better than his production. The inventor' concept is more complete than his device. Those who would achieve are wisely counseled to hitch their wagon to a star. Shall the Christian Scientist alone be chided for so doing?

There is yet hope for our superior friend. If we will be patient with him he may one day be willing to put his stubborn pride in his pocket, so as to take at least a few steps up the mountain of Truth, and there in the comparatively broader view he may have a healing experience that will mean something even to him.

Paul, who declared that the goal of religion is nothing short of perfection, wrote: "I count not myself to have apprehended; but . . . forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark." In another place he makes it clear that even though aware that the law of sin was working in his members, his bodily sense of being, it was consistent and right that with his mind or spiritual sense of being he should serve the law of God.

SIMPLE OF APPLICATION

The prayer of perfection is universally available. There is no human problem that may not yield to its healing influence. Intellectual proficiency is not a requisite, else the simple fishermen of Galilee could not have caught its meaning and method. It is a matter of right thinking. You are master of your thought, if you so choose. Your affairs, of body, mind, surroundings, are the coincident expression of your thought.

If you will begin, as a systematic daily mental practice, to contemplate the essential nature of God, as best you can conceive of Him, and definitely and in an orderly fashion to affirm in your thought the reality of God's nature; if you will in like manner systematically and persistently deny the essential reality of all that is unlike the nature of God; if you will do this not as a matter of vain repetition but with an earnest striving to bring into this activity some degree of conscious realization of the actual presence and power of God, operating in and through you to bring into expression the essentials of His nature, you will find that, asking bread, you will not be given a stone.

You will find, if your experience does not differ from that of countless thousands of your fellow-men, that the setting into operation of these processes of Christianly scientific thinking will begin to be made manifest in most practical ways in your experience, in healing of sickness, overcoming of sin, mastery of lack, suppression of discord, elimination of fear. There is rich reward in taking your stand mentally on the side of the good God and His good creation.

You need not demand to enter into your full heritage of perfection by a mere profession of words. Centuries of mistaken affirmation of reality and power in evil may not be wholly overcome in a day. You need not be in a hurry to finish the work, but there is no excuse for not making haste to begin. The beauty of this Science is that it quickly verifies itself in the experience of the earnest student. It is like mathematics in that respect. A few simple applications of the very first rules will prove the Principle and inspire the confidence necessary to further progress. The rule of addition does not solve the problem of Euclid, but does assure it. In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mrs. Eddy, are set forth the simple rules by which the all-inclusive fact of being may be apprehended.

There is nothing the matter with God or His creation. The trouble is with our sense of things. We need to take on the Mind that was in Christ Jesus, which enabled him to say with absolute conviction, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." We need not merely to believe this theoretically, but to affirm it practically, to hurl it as a spiritual weapon against the arguments of imperfection, as did the Master. He was not propounding a philosophy. He was going about doing good; not theorizing, but accomplishing.

If we would be scientific Christians, our answer to the suggestions of evil must be, "Get thee behind me, Satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." The medicine of the Great Physician was denial of error and affirmation of truth. By this purely spiritual process the sick were healed, the lame walked, the dumb spake, the blind saw, the dead were raised. And the method was always the same—the definite rule of imperfection denied, perfection affirmed. "He sent his word, and healed them." Here was such clear realization of the fact of perfection that mere belief in the supposition of imperfection faded out of consciousness.

Do you doubt that this was the method by which Jesus healed? Well, you do not need to doubt. You may prove the rule for yourself, modestly at first, perhaps, but assuredly. Or if the odds seem too heavy for you at the beginning, you may have the loving help of others, until the evidence in your experience is sufficient to enable you to proceed with confidence and success.

Truths in Epigram

There is no courage but in innocence; no constancy but in an honest cause. — Southern.

To dread no eye and to suspect no tongue, is the greatest prerogative of innocence.—Dr. Johnson.

Let justice be done though the heavens fall.—Lord Mansfield.

Innocence is as an armed heel to trample accusation.—Shelley.

THEORY AND FACT

German miners in the Ruhr have the sanction of their government in refusal to work. They seem to be instructed that such refusal would be regarded as an expression of patriotic devotion. However, it is necessary for the German miner to eat. Trained in military service he, with other classes of workmen, marched away to a great war without having had much of a notion what it was about. When he returned and resumed the tasks of peace, the army rations ceased. Probably the thought occurred to him that whatever debt had been owned by him to his country had been fully discharged. He had to toil, and for small wages, the mark having shrunk almost to nothing.

Since the French have taken forcible possession of the coal region there has been some trouble to get the necessary work done at the mines. At first the Germans declared that they could not be induced to serve under alien taskmasters. They seem later to have had that sober second thought easily prompted by emptiness of stomach. They found that the French were ready to pay them in real money having a purchasing power. They are able to earn far more than before the invasion and so they are wielding their tools again. Perhaps their hearts are not in the job, but this makes little difference so long as the job is being done.

The practice of sabotage is pursued with difficulty in the presence of men with guns frankly opposed to such methods. The German miner digs coal, dissembles his enmity, and omitting violence. By this course he betters his own condition, while helping the French to solve a problem.

AN IMAGINARY ULTIMATUM

There are people in this country who profess to believe that England should intervene between France and Germany. They hold that England is bitterly opposed to the French action in relation to the Ruhr. It happens that they have been misinformed. Either this, or the unhappy conclusion must be reached that they are attempting to deceive. The English people, judged by their expressions, not as diplomatists in office, or plotters outside, endeavoring to gain office, but as plain citizens, warmly endorse the course of France. London papers are crowded with their voluntary endorsements.

An American string of papers, possibly in the hope of "stringing the public" as a certain process of deception is termed, announce that the British cabinet prepared an ultimatum to France. It was not delivered, but then it might have been. So the papers in question publish what purports to be a copy of the document. A moment's thought as to the impressiveness of this opinion may not be amiss.

Bonar Law's cabinet formulates an ultimatum. Reading it over carefully, the collective wisdom of the body decides that it would be well not to forward it. So they hand it over to the faithful correspondent. "Here's what we would like to say," they advise him, "but we daren't. The people would kick us out if we did. So you tell 'em."

Thereupon the faithful correspondent puts the stuff on the wire, apparently in the belief that the public on this side is gullible. It is so natural that a cabinet should reveal its utmost secrets to the faithful correspondent.

SPLITTING THE INFINITIVE

Postmaster General New has been elected a member of the split infinitive club. He went in with honors, as he won by splitting an infinitive to greater than the customary width. The sentence was this: "The postoffice department finds itself called upon to all but perform the impossible."

That was about as awkward a form of attempting to say something as could be found in delving the entire field of letters. However, as to the splitting of infinitives there is much unwarranted fussing. Of course to observe the operation is painful to the purist, and the purist is a pest. Therefore the continual temptation to use the forbidden form. Doubtless, however, New stumbled into the error through inadvertence. Better writers who commit the offense do so more gracefully.

In the work of many writers of the first class the split infinitive may be found, if anybody takes the trouble to look for it. As a rule it is not a blemish. As a matter of fact it seems to convey with nicest shading, the exact meaning sought to be conveyed. Such is the legitimate function of language. The protest against the split infinitive comes as a rule from persons eager to show themselves capable of detecting it. They believe this stamps them as experts. They might unconsciously use the form in their own critical comment, and they might be guilty of other errors far more gross.

In many of the spectacular crimes perpetrators of which have been caught by the police, women have figured. Sometimes they actually have taken a part. In others they have proved to be merely the friends and companions of the malefactors, but quite aware of the activities of the males of the gang. As a rule these women have evaded punishment. In a recent instance such a woman turned state's evidence, possibly on the theory that this would win freedom for her, and the chance to form new alliances. The scheme failed, and the failure probably will be a lesson to other women of the stripe. There really seems no reason for permitting a criminal to escape when the plea of sex is the only one possible to advance.

It is easier to win a wife with flattery than to maintain her on it.

UNPUNISHED CRIMES

Not long ago the country was shocked by the acquittal of men charged with wholesale murders at Herrin, Ill. The shock was due to the belief that the men were guilty. There were witnesses who swore to the guilt of the accused, and to having seen the acts of murder. Prior to the trial the men later arrested had boasted of their deeds. The jury went through the form of considering the evidence and cleared the prisoners. Some of the same prisoners are again at bar for others of the slayings that marked the Herrin butchery. There seems to be no reason to hope that justice shall be done.

In Louisiana the bodies of two victims of mob murder, the mob presumably composed of members of the k. k. k. were taken from the bottom of a lake. There were indications that they had been killed with utmost deliberation and cruelty unparalleled. Testimony was not lacking, as members of the sheeted rabble had been recognized. Nevertheless a grand jury, while deploring the unfortunate episode, professes to have found nothing upon which to base an indictment. The word of the jury may have to be accepted officially, although throughout the land it will be regarded as insincere, a finding to be ascribed either to prejudice or fear.

To the Professional Uplifter

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Gentlemen, we grant in the beginning that you mean well and sometimes, if sufficiently opposed, you do well.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

But why—I inquire to know—why is it wicked for people who have worked all week to listen to music on Sunday?

And why—again I approach the fountain for the purpose of imbibing a few drops of knowledge—WHY do you class necessary and dignified instruction of basic matters as salacious?

In all the world nothing is more needed than some true and dignified information that will guide the young in matters pertaining to sex. You can't get away from the effects of sex any more than you can get away from contact with oxygen. Both are vital to life; yet for centuries young people have been compelled to go through life either ignorant of their own bodies and so running the risk of ruining them or else informed or misinformed by the ignorant and vicious with dire results to themselves and the race.

We are now confronted with a national campaign for the suppression of divers and sundry things. The bootlegging industry, praise be, the divorce evil, thank heaven, race track gambling and the narcotic trade.

Salacious literature is on the prohibited list, as it should be, for obscenity is a basic form of degeneration. But why class as salacious all information touching sex? It's stupid and wicked; moreover, it tends to fix in the minds of the young a nasty slant on the closest and most sacred relations in life and therefore, gentlemen, your own bias is one cause of the light o' love attitude toward marriage that has so much to do with filling the registers of the divorce courts.

It does seem to me that it is time to stop classing parenthood as a salacious subject that should in the interest of good morals be expunged from the literature put out by reputable houses.

Why should music be classed with bootlegging and sex made taboo?

Daily letters come to my desk from bewildered mothers and fathers asking for some book that will enable them to answer the questions of their children. These people have not even the necessary vocabulary to explain to the young the facts of life. A few beautiful books are now available for the use of such parents.

But if the plans of the World's Temperance Foundation go through they will be suppressed. This group has a fund of $375,000 with which to back its program and the first thing it proposes to do is to stop Sunday concerts. Just as if God objected to anything so lovely and elevating as music. The second object is to stop all literature dealing with sex.

William A. Brady has refused at their dictation to discontinue Sunday concerts in the New York theaters and I sincerely hope that parents will also rebel.

Gentlemen of the World's Temperance Foundation, can't you learn to distinguish between what is, of itself salacious and what becomes so only when viewed through the distortions of a salacious mind?

If you cannot you are unfit to instruct others in morality.

THE TROUBLESOME COMMA

(Find the error in this article)

That little punctuation mark, the comma (,), is an invaluable asset to clearly written english, and yet often a problem to an inexperienced writer, sometimes to experienced ones.

First, it should be remembered that composition work should be supplied with no more punctuation than is necessary to make the meaning clear. Practice varies with different writers, so it is not easy to lay down a group of set rules.

Secondly, one should read the works of good writers and learn how to punctuate through observation.

The following suggestions are offered in this article. Others will be published later.

Place a comma after an introductory word, when a pause seems desirable; as, First, there is the account; Therefore, he did all he could.

After a salutation in a familiar letter between friends; as, My dear Henry, (Dear James).

Unnecessary at the end of the first and second lines of an address; as,

Mr. J. Hugh Collingswood
218 Marion Street
Dayton, Ohio

Unnecessary after the complimentary close of a letter; as, (Very truly yours).

Used in connection with dates as follows: March 21, 1923: Wednesday, March 21, 1923.

Vocabulary

A lurid light is a ghastly yellowish red light; as, from flames mingled with smoke, or a reflection made visible by such a light. The word has been extended to an uncertain or unearthly light of any kind; as, lurid flashes of lightning; a lurid atmosphere. . . Lurid also means pale, wan, sallow, ghastly, gloomy; and (figuratively), ghastly and sensational; as, a lurid tale. The adverb is luridly, and luridness is the noun.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

"It's a pretty good world."
Get into the habit of thinking that.
For it will help you and help the world.
And if you think you cannot help the world you are mistaken.
You are a part of it all.
And an important part.
The more useful you are the more important you are.

* * *

"It's a pretty good world."
That belief makes you feel friendly toward the world in which you live.
It takes away bitterness and anger and cynicism.
It replaces them with faith and courage and industry.
As those are things the world has much need of.
Faith and courage and industry.

Don't be disappointed or sour because it is not a perfect world.
It has not been, it is not and it never will be.
For if it were a perfect world there would be little for us to do.
No deserts to irrigate, no mountains to tunnel, no secrets to discover, no help to render.
It is because of the imperfections of the world that it needs our help.

* * *

But withal it is a pretty good world.
The soil yields fair harvests.
There are blights and bugs and things like that, but in the end the grain gets the better of the blights and bugs.
With the help of the blight-fighters and bug-fighters.
They think it is a pretty good world and they keep on fighting for it.
Trouble sometimes of course.
But always people willing to help.
Plenty of love and sympathy and understanding.
Enough to go all around if you and I will do our share.
And if we think it is a pretty good world we are more likely to do our share.

* * *

It is much in the way we look at things.
To the blind man there is no radiant sunset.
No green fields and towering trees and shimmering ocean.
And to the spiritually blind man there is little worth while in the world.

But we have the sun by day and the moon and stars by night.
Flowers and buds at the spring and summer.
Harvest and ripened fruits and red and yellow leaves at the autumn.
And then the winter of rest and zest and snow crystals and reflection at the hearth fire.

There is fire at the forge.
There is the share in the turf and field.
There is pink blossom and peeping violet and radiant rose.
There are hearts warm with human sympathy.
The prattle of baby voices.
The whisper of love in the ears of sweethearts.

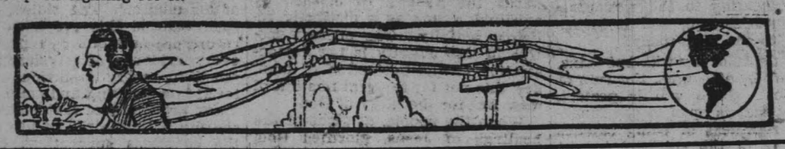
Yes, it is a pretty good world.
Spotted here and there with sorrow and trouble and crime and unhappiness.
But out of it all comes growth perhaps.
Out of struggle strength.
Out of grief sympathy and understanding.
Out of the chill of winter the warmth and bud of spring.

* * *

And it is our world.
The only world we have. Why not give it the best we have to give?



Songs of the Poets

The Butterbean Tent—By Elizabeth Madox Roberts

All through the garden I went and went,
And I walked in under the butterbean tent.

The poles leaned up like a good tepee
And made a nice little house for me.

I had a hard brown clod for a seat,
And all outside was a cool green street.

A little green worm and a butterfly
And a cricket-like thing that could hop went by.

Hidden away there were flocks and flocks
Of bugs that could go like little clocks.

Such a good day it was when I spent
A long, long while in the butterbean tent.

THE GOOD-WILL ELECTION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

NOTHING more promotes good understanding and more removes provincialism than for the people of one country to travel in another.

The class of people who most ought to travel are women. They not only need the broadening of their own lives, but their point of view and personal influence are likely to be more permanent and influential. The effect of politicians on international relations has always been bad.

In 1922 the American Committee for Devastated France instituted what they call Good-Will Elections.

The plan was to have the people vote at 10 cents a vote for the nomination of business and professional women over eighteen years of age who should be chosen to visit the scene of the war's desolation and see things for themselves.

The delegates elected are given a six weeks' trip in France under the auspices of the American Committee.

Being the representatives of their city, of the firm that nominated them, and of the newspaper that sponsored their election, they have an excellent opportunity to come in close contact with the French people and to observe at first hand the work the American Committee is doing.

Eighty-seven women who formed the first group of Good-Will delegates came from twenty-eight cities of the United States.

Since then something like forty or fifty cities have united in this project and newspapers have taken up the idea.

Thousands of concerns such as the Ford Motor Company, the General Electric Company, the Chicago Elevated Railway and so on, have lent their aid.

In each election city a leading newspaper serves as the committee's Good-Will associate and the election is conducted through its columns and under its auspices.

The French press has been enthusiastic in praise of the movement and hailed the arrival of the first delegation as an event in the relations between the two nations comparable only to the landing of the first American troops on French soil.

Etienne de Naleche, president of the Paris Press Syndicate and director of the Journal des Debats, announced:

"We appreciate the initiative taken in this magnificent work which cannot fail to strengthen the friendship and mutual understanding between the two countries. We take this occasion for thanking America once more for the valuable aid she bestowed upon France during the most tragic moments of her history."

The New Orleans Times-Picayune declared: "The women who launched this movement could not have conceived an ambition more beautiful and more necessary. This should not stay on this continent. The world at large needs such a club."

It has been pointed out that this is a movement between governments. It has no political complexion whatever. As such it is significant of the new spirit of the times.

For we are beginning to realize that about all governments do officially is to play up the national spirit and keep peoples apart.

The great movements which unify the peoples of the earth, such as commerce, science, art, literature, and travel, come directly from the people themselves and the government has nothing to do with them.

This sort of invasion of a foreign country is one which everybody ought to approve.

In this kind of war—a war against ignorance and for the promotion of good understanding — there are no pacifists.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SLEEP ANOTHER HOUR

[New York Evening Mail]

More sleep is needed at this time of year than in the spring, summer or fall. One of the best remedies for incipient colds is sleep. Fatigue, exhaustion and nervous tension make trifling colds grow worse and form a basis for influenza and pneumonia.

Everybody should take more sleep in the winter. Nature gives a strong hint to that effect in making the nights longer and the days shorter.

With the many weather changes of the current month and the depletion of vitality resulting therefrom, everybody should be sure of at least eight hours sleep and an extra hour would do good. This is especially necessary for children.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It is said of a professor of English at Columbia university that he never reads a newspaper. For two years he is supposed never to have glanced at one.

HENRY JAMES

This is a serious charge to bring against a professor of anything, but particularly of English. Even a professor of pugilism or of dancing would be ashamed to admit laxness in regard to so important a matter as the world's news.

No instructor of youth in this practical age has a right to hold himself aloof from the world about him, imaging that he is superior to his environment, that he has nothing in common with the human herd.

The man who does not read the papers may be an authority on English construction. He may be a judge of literary values. He may be duly horrified at coming into contact with a split infinitive, but he is bound to be an ignoramus. Newspapers, with all their flaws, nevertheless are the great agencies of education. They make possible a community of knowledge and inspire community of thought.

If there is a professor at Columbia who regards himself as too wise and too good to read the newspapers, he does not belong to earth. In the chair of learning he is a misfit. He has formed for himself an exclusive heaven; which is all right, if he likes it. But no student desires to follow him thither.

Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, well-known writer of perfectly innocent stories, lost her husband the other day. In the fact that out of a $100,000 estate the widow was left $1, there must have been an additional shock. Most of the estate went to a chauffeur.

Mrs. Freeman might find in the situation something to put a real tang into her next story. Meanwhile, if a lady of reasonable spunk, she will endeavor to knock that will higher than a kite.

There is a growing interest in the war on narcotics. Owing to circumstances, the campaign had its origin in California. From here it has spread all over the country. It is even beginning to take hold upon the interests of other nations, and a proposition has arisen that the war be made international.

This is enough to excite the opposition of certain senators. Think of the perils of an entangling alliance!

The name of at least one actor connected with the movies has appeared in connection with bootleggers. He is listed as a patron, not a promoter. Unless there is abundant proof, it is unfair that he should be dragged into this sort of publicity. There is a limit even to the desire for publicity. But if it is true, there would seem no particular reason for sparing anybody's feelings. The small fry of the traffic are going to jail every day, or incurring serious injuries in the bank roll.

Something keeps happening to hold the Meadows tragedy before the public. Just now it is the arrest of the father of the victim on a charge of larceny. Usually it is mention of the rumor that the sleuths are again on the trail of Clara Phillips. However, it is not correct to say "again." There is not the slightest evidence that the trail in question ever has been glimpsed. The woman simply vanished, completely and it seems, finally.

A most singular cause of arrest is recorded from Chicago. A veteran of the world war, badly scarred in action, made the complaint that his brother, younger and fashionably dressed, mocked at the scars.

There did not seem to be any law exactly to fit the case, but some observer should have volunteered to kick the younger brother around the block.

* * *

It is possible to witness a bit of excitement even in suburbs ordinarily free from turmoil. For example, a driverless automobile recently was seen careening down North Lake avenue where the grade is approaching the mountains through Altadena. In the machine was an old man helpless and dazed, shouting his terror. The machine veered a little, plowed through a ditch, started to vault a low stone wall, half succeeded in the attempt, and hung still on the top of the obstacle. It was a fine heavy machine, quite new, not badly damaged by the impact, and the occupant was not hurt.

The runaway machine is not a common spectacle, but the driver who sees one coming has more thrills in an instant than he thought his system could contain.

The people of this country believe in fair play. Every day they may read in the papers of raids on bootleggers, of the destruction of illicit liquors, of imprisonments and fines, and they are glad that the law is being enforced. They believe in law as well as in fair play.

Dispatches tell of a combination of millionaire bootleggers operating in New Long Island. They are said to be openly defiant. The police ignore them.

This sort of stuff is not reckoned to be good reading. It shows the violation of law, but it shows also violation of the unwritten code that believes that sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

If a millionaire is guilty of the offenses for which the poor person goes to jail, the millionaire ought to be in the next cell.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

When all the detective stories and mystery novels and he, she and them tales fail to interest me I can fall back on Frazer's "Golden Bough" and be sure of entrancement. It is almost a crime to die without having read it. If I were St. Peter at the gate I'd put the question to every applicant for entry:

"Have you read the 'Golden Bough?'"

Frazer strikes in one chapter an interesting line. His theory is that the tyrants and magicians and chief priests of the past were instruments through whom humanity gradually gained liberty. We have always thought of them as the cruel masters who held our forebears down.

"It is the deadly monotony of life," he says in effect but not in these words, "the crushing sameness, the iron rule of a tradition that compels the savage to do each thing just as his grandsires did it, that barred humanity from liberty. The tyrants and the priests and the magicians were forced to break through this steel bond of custom. They stirred their people into thought and action. If it had not been for them we might today have been as inert as the Solomon Islanders."

That is the sort of thing I like to read. It helps me when I lead my own private revolt. I liked a play I saw the other night, but because no one else did I was actually afraid to say so until I read Frazer. Mrs. Pilgrim, her sister, her sister's haw-haw husband, who thinks entirely with his biceps, the neighbor, the man who sat next to me, the reviewers, all the intelligentsia of our town, thought the play was rotten.

Tomorrow—these revolts grow by degrees—I shall refuse to go to the Sunday afternoon tea, to have the car painted a peacock blue, to visit a rocking chair resort on the sea when I pine to go fishing, and shall buy the dotted tie my heart craves.

In other words, I shall pay more attention to what I think than to what I am told I should think.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

The resurrection fern of our southern states, a plant which remains in a state of suspended animation during drouth, has been known to survive for more than a year without water.

Glasgow, Scotland, was miles away from its port on a shallow stream two feet deep, when in 1773 engineers narrowed the channel and made the river dig its own bottom deeper so that now huge ocean liners can dock.

Rubber obtained from trees which grow wild in Brazil is superior in quality to that obtained from the same sort of trees under cultivation.

It has been discovered that the kind of dates grown within sight of the great pyramids of Egypt is well adopted to production in Southern California on a commercial scale.

EASTER CHIMES ON MT. RUBIDOUX

[By Associated Press]

RIVERSIDE, Calif., March 21.—Easter will be ushered in with chimes again this year at Riverside's annual sunrise service on Mount Rubidoux. From the throats of bells mounted high on the mountain, near the cross which tops the summit, the notes of old, familiar hymns will float over the valley as pilgrims from every part of Southern California thread their way toward Rubidoux in the hours preceding dawn.

Other features of the sunrise service this year will be solos, the singing of Easter songs in chorus, appropriate religious readings and prayers, and the reading of Dr. Henry Van Dyke's poem, "God of the Open Air."

HOMES FIRST IN ANCHORAGE

[By Associated Press]

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 21.—With the purpose of obtaining permanent population, preferably of young married couples, the business institutions of Anchorage, including the banks, are working out a plan whereby preference will be given to young married men in employment, and they will be encouraged to purchase homes in the city. The question includes in its economic scope such matters as causes for divorce and failure of young couples to get a proper perspective on life through not having mutual responsibilities. It is argued that many divorces come through improper direction of youth at the time of entering the marital state. Owning the home is considered the first essential to personal success and the successes of a city.

WE WOMEN

By BETTY BRAINERD

DO CLOTHES AND BEAUTY MAKE THE WOMAN?

"Women, like men," says the president of the New Jersey Federation of Women's clubs, are "apt to put too much faith in a pretty face or attractive clothes."

And so she appeals to members of the federation not to select pretty women as officers at the annual convention to be held in the spring.

What the lady says is most interesting and unusual.

"Don't select a woman as a candidate for office because she is good looking or wears pretty clothes. Popularity should not be given undue consideration, either. These externals amount to very little. We are living in a democracy, and we must have leadership in order to maintain the democracy. We must be generous in choosing leaders. I do not like the word 'jealousy,' but sometimes it is true that clubwomen do not give their hearty support to those who have the qualities for leadership."

I have no desire to pick any bones with the lady, but I do think she goes too far when she says good looks and attractive clothes amount to very little. In theory, of course, they are unimportant, but do men marry theories?

Good looks and attractive clothes, however, are more than mere externals. They are indices to character, ingenuity and good taste.

It seems to me the lady's appeal implies an embargo on good looks and attractive clothes. The organization of which she is president has 36,000 members. Politically, an appeal of the kind which she makes, if followed, would create an autocracy of unattractive women, instead of a democracy. Moreover, it would be an autocracy in which I think men would not care to live. And, after all, men do fit in with the general scheme of things.

I believe the New Jersey Federation of Women's clubs will have a stormy future. The convention, I dare say, will break up in a riot. The president, in effect, says: "Don't elect a pretty woman who wears attractive clothes."

My feeling is that the organization will have a hard time finding women willing to serve on a platform of this sort. Some of us may not be good looking or wear attractive clothes, but we are not in the habit of admitting it by accepting office in any organization.

A young man approached his prospective father-in-law. "Sir," he said, "your daughter has promised to marry me, and that may be all right. But one has to be careful these days. I'd like to know—just to be sure—is there any insanity in your family?" The old gentleman looked the young man up and down. "I'm afraid there must be," he said.

COLLEGE BOXERS CLASH MARCH 24

[By Associated Press]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., March 21.—Members of the Stanford boxing and wrestling teams are working out every night in preparation for matches with the University of Southern California, to be held on March 24. Nine boxers and six wrestlers will participate with the Trojans in the coming tourney. It is planned also to stage a tournament with the Los Angeles Athletic club while the Stanford men are still in Los Angeles.

The boxers who were picked to meet California prior to the calling off of the matches by Dr. W. H. Barrow of the Stanford physical education department in a protest against mixed bouts, will probably make the trip, although Coach Harry Maloney has made no definite statement. Those who seem assured of places are Lane, Ross, Armbruster, Robinson, Irwin and Van Hook.

HOOVER TRADE MEET MARCH 24

[By Associated Press]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, California, March 21.—Dr. Alonzo Englebert Taylor, director of the Stanford Food Research institute, is enroute to Washington, D. C., to attend meetings of the committee named by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, to inquire into and report on the problems of the American export trade in agricultural products. The meetings will begin in Washington on March 24.

The committee was appointed by Secretary Hoover after the congressional action in making an appropriation for the study. Dr. Taylor received a telegram notifying him of his appointment and asking him to attend the meetings in Washington immediately.

There are sixteen men named on the committee, covering a wide range of organizations and government bureaus connected with agriculture and allied industries. Included on the committee are three officers of the American Farm Bureau federation: Julius Barnes, formerly United States Wheat director and now president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Ralph Merrit, president of the California Rasin and Rice association, and the heads of a number of big enterprises concerned with the production of cotton, meat and other outstanding agricultural products, as well as several bankers.

A Gothamite in Havana asked central to connect him with a certain number in New York, adding, "Tell the party who answers that I wish to speak to my bulldog."

After a brief interval, guests standing near by heard a faint "Woof, woof!" coming from the receiver. Then central cut in sweetly. "Your time is up; that will be twenty dollars."

"Dog-gone!" growled the New Yorker, "that's ten dollars a woof."

"BARBARIAN"

originally meant any one who was not of Greek blood. It comes from the Greek "barbaros."

GET IN LINE

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

Entering a theatre lobby to buy seats you find a line of people awaiting their turn at the box office window. Unless you are exceedingly ignorant or unscrupulous you make no attempt to forestall them in reaching the ticket seller.

Uncomplainingly you take your place at the end of the line. You appreciate that this is what is expected of you, that it is the fair and proper thing for you to do, and to adopt any other course in defiance of a custom which has behind it the weight of social authority will be to invite trouble.

Are you equally careful to comply with the requirements of social authority in matters more important than the buying of theatre seats?

Many people certainly are not. More than this, besides defying social authority in matters of really vital importance, many people are bitterly rebellious and fill the air with their complaints when justly called to account and penalized for not getting in line.

Social authority, for example, both for convenience sake and as a protection for life and limb, imposes sundry restrictions on all drivers of those useful but potentially dangerous high-powered vehicles known as automobiles. These restrictions social authority formulates in specific laws, limiting speed, laying down rules of the road, etc.

Everybody knows that these laws are daily disregarded, even by persons who would not dream of infringing on the rights of others in so trifling a respect as the purchase of seats for a theatrical performance.

Yet, in the latter case, non-compliance with the requirements of social authority means at worst injury to other people's feelings. In the former case it may mean, and often does mean, the taking of other people's lives.

So, too, for the common good, social authority prescribes sundry regulations as preventives of the spread of infectious diseases. When, for one thing, an infectious disease of uncommon malignity invades a household, the people of that household are required to keep their children out of school, perhaps to stay at home themselves for the duration of a quarantine period.

Again and again it happens that people who would deem it almost a crime not to get in line in a theatre lobby, without a qualm, break quarantine. And if punished for so doing they are loud in their protestations, albeit their breaking of quarantine may have been the means of spreading death through the neighborhood.

Social authority, once more, requires of men and women who marry that they remain faithful to their marriage obligations, and, if they bring children into the world, that they take pains to rear those children aright, physically, mentally and morally.

Yet there are men and women who think nothing of marital infidelity, look upon divorce as a matter of course and so far from carefully rearing their children, surround them with harmful influences. Then when the voice of social authority condemns them, when they are subjected to the deserved penalty of ostracism, they wail that they are most unjustly treated, and prate about what they are pleased to term a cruel invasion of the rights of the individual.

Every individual, to be sure, has rights which society should respect. But never do those rights include behavior menacing the welfare of society. Nay, when that welfare is menaced the safety of every individual member of society is endangered.

That is something everybody needs to appreciate. And that is why everybody should be zealous to heed the command, "Get in line," when social authority utters that command.

VALLEY LEAGUE PLACE OPEN TO GLENDALE TEAM

Requires Grounds and Forfeit to Get Results

Due to the almost discouraging hard work of Manager Walt Heidler, the Glendale team has an outfit that has earned a position in the Valley league, one of the strongest circuits in the summer leagues of Southern California Baseball Managers' association. There are some stiff requirements that go with this position in the league and only to more harder work and a greater amont of support from the fans can the team go through with it.

Here are some of the requirements:

First—The team must have a good appearance. That refers to uniforms and equipment.

Second—Either $50 or $100 must be posted as forfeit money.

Third—A fairly good grounds, enclosed if possible and a good back stop.

The team is putting on a dance at the Odd Fellows' hall, Friday, April 6, in order to help itself, but it is going to be a tough proposition unless the public and city as a whole get behind and give a boost. The merchants so far have helped out wonderfully by buying tickets.

The berth in this league will be advertising for Glendale in every town and city from the ocean all the way up the valley to San Bernardino.

Any help is welcome by Manager Heidler, who can be reached at 420 Ivy street. Phone Glen. 1272-M.

FLOWER SHOW FOR SARATOGA

SAN JOSE, Sal., March 21.—Saratoga, the little foothill town 12 miles west of here, will entertain thousands of visitors March 24 and 25, when it will be the center of the twenty-third annual Santa Clara valley blossom festival. It was originally planned to hold a parade and pageant in San Jose in conjunction with the Saratoga activities, but this idea was later abandoned.

An address by James D. Phelan, formerly a United States senator from California, will open the celebration on March 24. His address will be followed by a musical program by a chorus of several hundred voices. Sunday afternoon, Carrie Jacobs Bond, composer of "A Perfect Day," will be the accompanist when one of her songs will be rendered by the chorus.

Programs will be given in a huge open air amphitheatre adjoining the town. The panorama of more than 100,000 acres of prune, apricot and almond orchards in full bloom attracts thousands to the valley every year, and to extend welcome and hospitality to these is the purpose of the festival.

WITH THE BAND

To march up the street with the band.
Say, that was the time that was glad!
When the sounding brass drum
With its bum-bum-bum-bum
Aroused every bare-footed lad!
When the blaring trombone
With its ear-splitting tone
And the fife and the flute
With a whistle and toot
Sent a thrill through us all that was mad.

To march up the street with the band.
We heard the first notes from afar.
I can hear the notes yet
Of the shrilling cornet
Though way back in boyhood they are.
And the drum major tall
With his great hat and all,
With the great stick he spun,
And the whirl that was done,
Nor a slip nor a mishap to mar.

To march up the street with the band,
The band all in silk brightly blue,
Or in uniforms red,
A plug hat on each head,
Oh say, did it ever thrill you?
With your little bare feet
On the old dusty street
And the crownless straw hat
And torn pants and all that,
Did you know the thrill that I knew?

To march up the street with the band!
With its color and pageant and blare,
How we followed it on
Till the last tune was gone,
With our little legs walking on air!
To Main street's old track
How I'd like to go back
Just a freckle nosed lad
With the thrill that I had
And live me a whole life right there!

EUROPEAN CHAMPS ARE A POOR BUNCH

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 21.—Decline of the British boxing class is shown most strikingly in the list of new European ring champions recognized by the International Boxing Union.

Where once English fighters ruled almost supreme on the other side of the Atlantic, France and Belgium have now crowded in and won more representation on the list of champions.

Belgium has two, France three and England only one champion on the following new list prepared and accepted by the International Boxing Union:

Flyweight, Montreuil, Belgium.
Bantamweight, Ledoux, France.
Featherweight, Criqui, France.
Lightweight, Open.
Welterweight, Hobin, Belgium.
Middleweight, Todd, England.
Light heavyweight, Siki, France.
Heavyweight, Spalla, Italy or Van der Veer, Holland.

It will be observed that Jimmy Wilde, the one great British champion, and Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight, have been removed from the official list. They were taken out from under their titles by the simple expeditate of ruling them out, a la Duke Muldoon.

The Duke's New York commission is said to be affiliated with the International Union, but the Duke may remember that the International refused to recognize the Duke's operation on Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Wilson and Wilde and Beckett may not lose their titles as European champions of New York.

* * *

The European solons bounced Wilde out of the list because of inactivity and they gave the air to Beckett on general principles.

Some punishment ought to be meted out to the Kilbanes, Wilsons, Wildes and the other champions who refuse to defend their titles, but no punishment can be respected if it is not effective.

The process of removing a title by making a motion and having it seconded and passed will never be effectual.

* * *

Regardless of the injustice apparently done to Wilde and Beckett it remains an admitted fact that England is in a bad way for fighters. This was shown when Ted Lewis left the United States a worn-out, has-been old horse—went back to England and won three championships.
